

Thousands Of Jews Continue Campaign To Embarrass Premier Kosygin

OTTAWA (AP) — Thousands of Jews marched Tuesday in a continuing campaign to embarrass Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. The ranks stretched over 10 city blocks and caused massive traffic backups in downtown Ottawa.

Police said 10,000 persons took part in the parade.

Hundreds of city and provincial police cordoned off the Rideau Club, where Kosygin lunched with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Hundreds more, plus Soviet KGB men, ringed a five-block radius from the Soviet Embassy in preparation for the arrival of at least 110 busloads of protesters from other cities.

The marchers cheered when a light plane flew overhead trailing a sign reading "Let them live as Jews or let them leave"—a reference to alleged mistreatment of Jews in the Soviet Union.

When Kosygin left the luncheon, a spattering of applause from a small crowd was mingled with hoots, jeers and chants.

As the parade formed Tuesday morning, waiting for the call to march from the traditional ram's horn, Kosygin held another round of what were described as solidly businesslike discussions with Trudeau and other Canadian leaders.

On the public front, the only Canadians who seemed to take notice of the visit were those with protests to make and axes to grind, and they have created a nightmare for both Soviet and Canadian authorities.

Security was visibly far tighter Tuesday because of the attempt by a young Hungarian to assault Kosygin the day before.

There have been no large crowds of well-wishers waiting to greet the visitor in the first two days of his eight-day tour.

On the contrary, most who turned out seemed to be there not to cheer but to jeer.

The protests may dog the trip in other cities. Busloads of protesters already have been heading toward Montreal, where Kosygin is due Thursday for an overnight stay, and other demonstrations are promised for Edmonton, Vancouver and Toronto.

A ram's horn signaled the beginning of the Ottawa march. The protesters formed up behind a group of rabbis and started toward a semicircle of several hundred police.

Young parade marshals formed a barrier in front of the police to insure no contact with the protesters. A sprinkling of young men carried blue and white flags bearing a clenched fist inside a star—the insignia of the militant, New York-based Jewish Defense League.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the league, and six companions were turned back to New York after arriving in Montreal.

Men with megaphones led chants: "Let our people go," and "Free Soviet Jewry." But the crowd was more pious than protest in atmosphere, despite the chant and the placards. The atmosphere was friendly.

One Montreal-bound convoy of 55 buses was halted for a check by Quebec provincial police, who said they were tipped there were bombs aboard. None was found and the buses were permitted to go on to Montreal for what organizers say will be nonviolent protests against Soviet treatment of Jews.

As Kosygin left his hotel for his second business session with Trudeau, about 50 Jewish youths greeted him with chants and slogans.

After his business session, Kosygin was taken to the swank Rideau Club, directly across the street from the Parliament Building, where he was host at a luncheon for the Canadian prime minister. Again, in front of the club, there were pickets, a relatively small knot of men with placards and chanted slogans.

Geza Matrai, the 27-year-old Hungarian accused of assaulting Kosygin on Monday, is being held in custody until his case comes up next week.

Two Montreal men charged with illegal possession of explosives after a dynamite bomb was found in a car near the Soviet Embassy were remanded in custody without plea until Oct. 26.

Kosygin's continuing talks with Canadian leaders again focused on international affairs and included a long exchange of views on the Middle East. Both nations support the United Nations' 1967 resolution calling for Israel's withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.

Spokesmen said there was no discussion of either Vietnam or Red China, nor did either side mention the current Canadian grievances against the United States because of Washington's economic policies.

House Begins Debate On Alaskan Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the price tag escalated from $7.2 million to $925 million, the House began debating Tuesday for the first time a perennial bill to settle aboriginal land claims of Alaska natives.

The bill would pay 55,000 Eskimos, Aleuts and Indians $425 million in cash over a ten-year period and $500 million in royalties from mineral production on Alaska public lands. It also would give them 40 million acres for village expansion.

The House is expected to vote Wednesday.

Proponents of the bill said that the federal administration once recommended settlement of the land claims for $7.2 million, the amount the United States paid Russia for Alaska in 1867.

The proposed settlements grew more liberal during the quarter-century that land-claims bills have been before congressional committees, said Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., until the present administration recommended $1 billion and 40 million acres.

Aspinall, chairman of the Interior Committee which wrote the present House bill, said that the proposed settlement has nothing to do with Alaska oil promotion.

If Alaska natives went to court with their claims, as Indians in the "lower 48 states" are doing, Aspinall said, they could possibly receive more than the bill offers.

High Court Agrees To Rule On Baseball As A Monopoly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to hear Curt Flood's argument that professional baseball enslaves its players—a judicial move which could point the way to ending the exemption from antitrust laws now enjoyed by this sports business.

Former Justice Arthur J. Goldberg will argue for the one-time all-star centerfielder at a hearing now tentatively set for mid-January. A final ruling is expected by June.

This is the first time in 18 years that the court has been willing to consider a legal attack on the structure of professional baseball. The sport currently enjoys immunity from both federal and state antitrust laws, an exemption the court has been unwilling to grant football, basketball or any other professional sport.

Flood and Goldberg center their attack on the so-called "reserve system," which binds a player to the team that holds his contract. Once a player signs with a team, he can play only for that team unless it

Japan Expresses Fear Of Proposed Expulsion Of Nationalist China

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Japan expressed fear Tuesday that the proposed expulsion of Nationalist China from the United Nations would upset a "favorable trend" in the political atmosphere of the Far East.

Speaking as "a close neighbor of China," Japan's former foreign minister, Kiichi Aichi, joined the United States in urging that Red China be seated in the world organization with the Taiwan delegation remaining.

He addressed the 131-nation General Assembly as the China debate went through its second day without any surprise switches which might throw light on the outcome of voting next week.

The Japanese noted that the situation in Asia "seems to be undergoing a change for the better," but declared that approval of the Albanian resolution "would be likely to entail an abrupt change" in this delicate situation.

The Albanian plan calls for seating the Peking government and outright expulsion of the Nationalists. The rival U.S.-backed resolution would keep both Chinas in the organization and give to Peking the permanent seat in the Security Council that the charter allots to WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress Tuesday to broaden his economic-control powers to cover interest rates and dividends and to set a stiff new civil fine of $2,500 for punishing violators of the post-freeze program.

The White House sent legislation to Capitol Hill that would extend for one year to April 30, 1973, the Economic Stabilization Act under which Nixon imposed the 90-day wage-price-freeze and the controls to follow.

But Treasury Undersecretary Charles Walker told newsmen the one-year time limit doesn't indicate the actual length of time the post-freeze controls will remain in effect.

The controls will last as long as "it takes to break the back of inflationary expectations and to make meaningful progress to bring down the cost of living," Walker said.

Nixon has no plans to clamp controls on interest rates and dividends, he said, pointing to what he called a "dramatic decline" in interest rates.

Although the controls over wages, prices and rents bar them from rising any higher than their level of May 25, 1970, the bill does not use that date on interest rates and dividends as a ceiling.

"Interest rates were closest to the highest level in 100 years at that time," Walker said, the bill would empower the President to stabilize interest rates and dividends at "levels consonant with orderly economic growth."

In addition, Walker said, the Cost of Living Council is setting up closer monitoring of interest rates to insure that more up-to-date figures are on hand.

The bill, as reported earlier, would set up a temporary emergency court of appeals to handle wage-price cases, to be named by Chief Justice Warren Burger.

It would be composed of three or more federal District or Circuit Court judges and would have the exclusive power to rule on the constitutionality of the law itself or any government order or regulation dealing with the post-freeze controls. But wage-price complaints by the public would still flow through District Courts first.

The civil penalty of $2,500 for each violation of the controls was a surprise provision of the bill. Officials said that, if passed, it could make enforcement of the controls easier.

Now, the law provides for a criminal penalty of $5,000 for each violation, a fine the government is reluctant to seek since it involves seeking a criminal conviction. The government would retain its power to seek court injunctions to bar and punish violations.

As anticipated, the new legislation would extend subpoena powers to the board and commission.

Walker said the administration strongly opposes requiring members of the Pay Board and Price Commission, the two bodies that will pass on wage and price increases, to be confirmed by the Senate.

Worldwide Recession Strengthens U.S. Position On Foreign Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — A worldwide recession, spreading and getting worse, is strengthening the United States' bargaining position on foreign trade.

From West Germany to Tokyo, jobless rolls are growing, national production is off and stock markets are falling. The recession is even reaching into underdeveloped countries whose raw materials exports are bringing in less cash.

The recession is felt in America, too, of course. But it has less influence on this country's foreign trade. The United States puts only about 4 per cent of its national output of goods into foreign trade. Germany, in comparison, sells about a third of its production overseas.

That means that Germany and Japan must export if they are to come out of their recession. The United States, less dependent on foreign markets and suppliers, can get out of its jam by its own efforts. But the need to trade to live puts pressure on the industrial countries—except France—to strike a bargain with the United States to open the American market to easy imports.

"I don't think people realize how bad things are over there," said William Wolman, a vice president of First National City Bank. "What is going on in the Common Market, for instance, would be called a recession anywhere else." And things could get worse unless they are repaired, in the view of E. Douglas Howard II, president of the Niagara Share Corp., a $100-million mutual fund.

Although the slowdown is most marked in the industrial countries of the world, it is felt by their neighbors and in the underdeveloped countries. As short-time working spreads in Germany, for instance, the foreign workers in that country have less money to send back home. This reduces the cash income of those countries who have sent their workers abroad—Yugoslavia, Spain, Portugal and the North African countries.

The countries producing the world's raw materials are nearly as badly off. Since Aug. 15, when President Nixon took economic steps that altered the world money system, the prices of raw materials are down an average of 8 per cent.

Lagging industrial activity is reflected in the stock markets of the richer countries. Since Aug. 15, stock averages have declined in every country except Britain. They are off 13 per cent in Japan, 9 per cent in Germany, and 7 per cent in Italy.

Even France, which exports only a small portion of her production to the United States, is not entirely in the clear. While her relative independence of trade has helped, her unemployment is the worst in recent years and wages are rising twice as fast as prices. This means trouble unless the disparity can be reduced.

Country by country, here is how the world's trading part-

House Leaders Block Straight Vote On War

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders blocked a straight up-or-down vote on the Senate's six-month Indochina war deadline in a stormy session Tuesday—and then interpreted a procedural vote as rejection of the deadline.

Sparkling angry floor speeches, Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois averted a direct showdown by moving that the House reject five Senate amendments including the war amendment in a $21-billion weapons bill purely on the ground they violated House germaneness rules.

"Today young Americans are getting their guts blown out in Vietnam," said Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, who had planned to move for the straight vote. "And we're sitting here in the House debating germaneness."

An effort to override Arends with a procedural motion to permit the up or down vote was rejected 215 to 192—and House leaders then called that vote House rejection of the six-month deadline.

So did the White House. Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren told reporters that President Nixon "appreciates the majority support and vote of confidence for his initiatives for peace through negotiation as represented by the 215-192 vote today."

House Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., told newsmen that the vote sends him to a House-Senate compromise conference on the $21 billion weapons bill with a House mandate not to accept the Senate war deadline.

"That's the only vote that counts," Hebert said.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, author of the amendment requiring U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in six months if American prisoners of war are released, said "that's their business" when asked about the House action.

Many County Positions Listed On Nov. 2 Election Ballot

November 2 is the date set for the 1971 municipal election, when the voters will name two Supreme Court Justices, elect three county commissioners, a sheriff, county treasurer and register and recorder. Nine borough council seats are up for consideration as well as school director posts.

Republican nominees to serve on the Supreme Court are Justice Alexander F. Barbieri, who was appointed to fill a vacancy on that bench and Judge George C. Eppinger. Both names will also appear on the ballot under the Constitutional banner. Democrat candidates are Judge Louis L. Manderino and Judge Robert N.C. Nix.

On the county level, Democrat County Commissioner Thomas J. Donnelly will seek his second term. Harold F. Spink of Sugar Grove is Donnelly's Democrat running mate. On the GOP side of the ledger, Dr. David K. Rice, incumbent and James Marshall, who was narrowly defeated in a write-in campaign in 1967, are also running for county commissioner.

Sheriff D.E. Allen Jr. (R) is up for reelection and will be opposed by Democrat Sam

It will be Bonnie Hoffman (R) vs John H. Bailey (D) of Youngsville in the county treasurer race.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, said hearings will begin on the bill Thursday. He said he feels the Pay Board and Price Commission members should be subject to Senate confirmation.

Patman said also he doesn't like a provision in the bill which would ratify the previous decisions and rulings by the government dealing with the wage-price freeze.

"The committee has in the past taken a dim view of retroactive statutes and we would need to move carefully on any proposals which might arbitrarily wipe out the legal rights of any individual or group," Patman said.

UN-China

China.

Pro-Peking speakers continued to hammer at the theme that Red China would have nothing to do with the United Nations as long as the Taiwan government remains in it.

The Indian Ocean country of Mauritius backed the U.S. demand that the assembly invoke the two-thirds rule by declaring expulsion of Nationalist China an "important question." The ambassador, Sir Seewoosagur Ramgoolam, added a new note by urging the Taiwan government to renounce its claim to be the government of mainland China.

Japan stressed that the dual representation plan was not a two-Chinas plan, but simply a transitional phase which eventually might lead to a settlement between Peking and Taipei.

"It is our profound belief," Aichi declared, "that by adopting our draft resolutions, the United Nations will open the path to reconciliation and peaceful dialogue, and will promote peace and stability in Asia."

The United States continued behind-the-scenes consultations to line up support. A U.S. spokesman said the mission was receiving 400 to 500 letters a week, mostly on China and about 95 per cent against the expulsion of the Nationalists. Asked whether many favored a cutoff of U.S. funds for the United Nations in the event the expulsion is voted, he said: "Not so many."

The spokesman said Saudi Arabia's amendments to the Albania resolution were a surprise. The main amendment submitted Monday by the Saudi Arabian ambassador, Jamil Baroudy, would eliminate the expulsion provision of the Albanian proposal and instead call for recognition of Peking's right to represent mainland China and Taipei's right to represent Taiwan. Baroudy promised to present amendments later to change the U.S.-backed resolution.

Recession

ners are faring:

West Germany—new orders are tailing off, workers are being put on short time, jobless rolls are growing. The revaluation of the mark and the U.S. import surcharge has hurt the exports industries such as automobiles and steel.

Belgium—Price controls are fighting to keep down the cost of living, but there are no controls on wages. "It seems likely there will be trouble in store," says the Financial Times.

France—Things are pretty good and may stay that way if consumer prices do not rise.

Italy—"The economy is well on its way into a recession," says one observer. Strikes have cut industrial production by a third, unemployment is the highest since the war and growth rate this year is expected to be zero.

Britain—Inflation and industrial stagnation are squeezing the country and unemployment is the highest since 1945. Manufacturing goods production is the same as a year ago.

Japan—The government had already put in measures to control inflation when the U.S. trade restrictions were put on. The U.S. and Japanese actions worked in tandem to turn the economy down. The government has just changed its predictions of growth from a rise of 10 per cent to only 5 per cent for this year. There is a shortage of labor in many fields, but restrictions on textile exports are expected to cost many jobs.

Africa—"The countries relying on oil are all right, but most of the others are suffering from low prices for raw materials.

South America—Budding industries are feeling a slowdown, in some cases because of a fall in foreign investment. Only Brazil reports a bright economic picture as prices for coffee and sugar remain good.

Arms Shipment Seized By British In Ireland

CORK, Ireland (AP) — Customs officials seized six trunks full of arms shipped into the Irish Republic Tuesday from New York aboard the British liner Queen Elizabeth 2.

The load of submachine guns and hand grenades, apparently destined for the Irish Republican Army, was part of what British army intelligence sources claimed is a steady stream of arms for the IRA.

The customs men stumbled on the arms at Cobh Harbor near Cork when they became suspicious of the weight of the trunks, which had not been claimed.

It was the second load of arms involving the IRA to be discovered in the last four days. Dutch police seized more than three tons of Czech-made weapons aboard a Belgian plane at Amsterdam Airport Saturday.

When the trunks' contents were uncovered, Irish police immediately sounded an alert and blocked roads around Cork in a hunt for the passenger in whose name the trunks were consigned aboard the liner.

The man disappeared when he landed from the ship, which anchored in the harbor en route to Southampton in England.

In Belfast, capital of Northern Ireland, a military intelligence spokesman said the discovery "confirms what we've always suspected—that arms are being smuggled to the IRA from the United States."

The British army has long believed that money from Irish-American IRA sympathizers was used to buy arms for the gunmen who want to unite Northern Ireland, which is mainly Protestant, with the predominantly Roman Catholic Republic.

In Dublin, the head of the Irish-Czech Society said the two-man Czechoslovak trade mission in the Irish capital helped organize the shipments seized in Amsterdam.

"I'm convinced they're helping organize the arms—and the trouble—in Ireland," said Barry Hardy.

In Amsterdam, Dutch police said the arms seized there had the official clearance stamp of the Czechoslovak airport customs on their bills of lading.

In London, debate in the British Parliament continued on allegations that British troops in Northern Ireland have tortured and brainwashed detainees suspected of being IRA men.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, the Cabinet minister responsible for the province, said a government committee under Sir Edmund Compton is investigating the charges, but stressed that "intelligence is of enormous importance in defeating the gunmen."

Bernadette Devlin, the Northern Irish opposition member, said attacks on police in the province were increasing because people believe "these men are engaged in the torturing of people in internment."

Indians Say Government Aids Those Who Rob Them

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indians told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday they've been robbed of land and water rights while their supposed guardian, the federal government, didn't protect them and many times helped the encroachers.

They testified at the opening of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee inquiry into what Sen. Edward F. Kennedy, D-Mass., called "the federal government's flagrant abdication of its trust responsibilities to the Indian people."

"The taking of Indian land and water and the infringement of Indian rights did not end in the last century," Kennedy, the subcommittee chairman, said in an opening statement.

"The lawlessness and immorality perpetuated by the government continues right now and it will continue tomorrow unless the United States does more than pay lip service to its sacred treaty obligations to Indian tribes."

Kennedy said the Northern Paiutes see Pyramid Lake shrinking, the Agua Calientes see ground water disappearing, the Navajos see their clean air clouding, and the lower-Colorado River tribes see their reservations shrinking.

"And all the while the Indians' trustee, advocate and protector—the U.S. government—stands idly, if not menacingly, by," Kennedy said.

Angelo Butterfield, a Lummi Indian from Idaho, said that during World War II "the Army came out to our reservation and told the leaders it was their patriotic duty to allow them to build an air base right within the reservation, without going to Congress for permission."

The chiefs trusted the military men's promises that their property would be returned even more valuable than before, she said.

"Our leaders were deceived," she said. "At the end of the war, the two communities on the edge of the reservation came to Congress to fight over who'd get the Indian lands. The city of Pocatello got it for $1."

Mel Tonasket, chairman of the Coleville Tribal Council in Washington state, said a few years ago a dam was built blocking a river running across the reservation.

"The Bureau of Indian Affairs superintendent told the Army Corps of Engineers that salmon wasn't very important so there was no sense in putting in ladders," Tonasket said. He referred to a canal of steps built around a dam to enable salmon to move upstream to spawn.

TV Reading Show Said Interesting And Fun

NEW YORK (AP) — The "Sesame Street" people have done it again. Now comes a new show that makes reading interesting and fun.

"The Electric Company," which premieres Monday on 200 public television stations and 12 commercial stations, seems certain to do for reading what "Sesame Street" did for the alphabet and numbers among preschool children.

Subtle humor, outrageous puns and skits performed by a repertory company—among them Bill Cosby, Rita Moreno, Judy Graubert, Morgan Freeman, and Skip Hinnant—are used to coax viewers to read words, phrases and sentences flashed onto the screen. The show has its own rock group, the Short Circus.

This half-hour daily program is aimed at school children 7-9 years old, and particularly those with a reading problem. Its makers believe it also may benefit functionally illiterate teen-agers and adults.

"It's almost a contradiction to use television to teach reading," said David D. Connell, executive producer for the Children's Television Workshop. "But the general agreement was that it was worth trying. And it was agreed that we should use the cafeteria system of using elements from a number of different reading methods."

"This show stretches the technical capabilities of television. It's an extremely difficult show to write. It's tough enough to write a comedy sketch, but one that teaches the 'fr' consonant blend, for instance, is really tough."

Samuel Y. Gibbon Jr., one of the original producers of "Sesame Street," spent a year on a study to see if a reading show was possible. Work on the show itself began early this year.

The $7-million budget for 130 shows was put up by the U.S. Office of Education, Ford Foundation, Carnegie Corp., Corp. for Public Broadcasting, and Mobil Oil Corp.

The show will be previewed Thursday at 7:30 p.m. EDT on 150 commercial TV stations.

Seen in preview, "The Electric Company" looks like an educational offspring of "Laugh-In." It is fast-paced, electronically oriented, and packed with original songs that point up the lessons. It's McGuffey's Reader meets Marshall McLuhan.

Children who cut their teeth on television will find much that is familiar here. Many of the skits—or lessons—are spoofs on television, and the repertory company assumes a number of characterizations. Skip Hinnant is Fargo North, Decoder, a word detective. Judy Graubert is Julia Grownup, a cooking instructor with some bizarre concoctions. Morgan Freeman is Easy Reader, a hip character who reads everything he lays eyes on, including matchbook covers. "Close cover before striking." Heavy, man!"

15 Killed

In Nursing Home Blaze

HONESDALE, Pa. (AP) — Fifteen elderly patients at a nursing home in this northeastern Pennsylvania community perished in a fire Tuesday night, authorities said.

Mrs. Anita Fitzsimmons, evening supervisor at Wayne County Memorial Hospital, said only a nurse managed to get out of the Geiger Nursing Home, located about two miles south of Honesdale.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons said the blaze may have started in the nursing home's laundry.

State police said they first heard of the fire shortly after 8 p.m. State police Cpl. Joseph Kiefer said three fire companies responded to the blaze, along with a number of ambulances.

Injuries

Prove Fatal

ELLICOTT, N.Y. — A 55-year old man from Rochester, N.Y., died at 3:40 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19, 1971 at WCA Hospital, Jamestown, N.Y., as the result of injuries suffered in a one-car accident at 11:50 p.m. Monday here.

According to the police, Richard C. Himes, 55, of 202 West Main rd., Rochester, was traveling south on Route 60 and lost control of his car which skidded 58 feet on the pavement then left the west side of the road and struck an embankment where Himes was ejected from the car. The vehicle continued another 148 feet before striking a cement culvert.

Cycle Damage $250

State police at the Warren substation reported a motorcycle accident at 6:10 p.m. Tuesday on the Old Russell Road and listed property damage at $250 to the vehicle involved.

Rodney Lee Lindell, 16, of RD 1A, Russell, was traveling north when he lost control on a sharp curve and skidded off the road. He was treated at a local physician's and released.

Arson Charged

ERIE—A fire of incendiary origin did $1,500 damage to a vacant house at 111 Sobieski st., the property of Mrs. William Podbieski of 3008 Marvin ave., police reported.

Arrested and charged with arson was David Allen Eckendorf, 20, of 109 Sobieski st., who was committed to Erie County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Police said the fire occurred at about 2:17 a.m. Monday.

Officials May Receive Increases

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House by a 134-42 vote, approved and sent the governor Tuesday a bill increasing salaries for county officials.

Earlier in the day the Senate-passed legislation — which does not include Philadelphia — was sent to the House Local Government Committee for amendment. However, when the committee reduced the raises, the House voted 119-59 against accepting the lower figures, and approved the measure as it passed the Senate.

The bill had to be passed this week to become effective for officials elected Nov. 2. Both houses will adjourn Wednesday until after the election. Once an official is elected, he cannot have his salary increased during his term.

RULE NO LONGER SO INVIOATE

Traditionally Politics Played Down When High Court Candidates Picked

HARRISBURG (AP) — Politics has traditionally been played down when Pennsylvanians pick candidates to sit in judgment on their highest courts.

Somehow this old rule doesn't seem as inviolate in 1971 as the campaign progresses for filling two seats on the State Supreme Court.

Perhaps it is because the court has been so much in the public eye this year as it passes judgment on various aspects of the new Democratic administration of Gov. Shapp. Included in its decisions was one striking down an original effort to write a state income tax law that was constitutionally acceptable.

For another thing, the court as currently constituted consists of six Republicans and one Democrat. Republicans want to keep it that way and if they do, some leaders will construe it as reflecting public disenchantment with the Shapp program.

This camp includes GOP State Chairman Clifford L. Jones, who thinks many fellow Republicans who stayed home in 1970 or voted Democratic will be out in vast numbers to express their protests at the local level. Some of this, in the Jones view, will lap over into the only statewide contest on the Nov. 2 ballot—that for Supreme Court.

An administration spokesman contends "it is not logical to declare any local race pertinent."

This source maintains that judicial contests by their very nature stress individual qualifications and personalities, not party orientation.

"Since all of the four candidates are sitting judges," he went on, "it would be a rather low estimate of the candidates to equate their qualifications for judicial robes on party affiliation."

Commonwealth Court Judge Louis J. Manderino comes close to sounding a political note when he counsels the election of two Democrats to give the court "balance." Manderino and Judge Robert N. C. Nix Jr. of Philadelphia common pleas court are the Democratic nominees.

The seven-member court is currently composed of six Republicans and one Democrat, Justice Michael J. Eagen. Politics is so subordinated, however, that the affiliation of the justices is not even identified in the Pennsylvania Manual.

The November contest involves the seats of retiring Chief Justice John C. Bell and that now occupied by incumbent Justice Alexander F. Barbieri, running for reelection on a ticket with President Judge George C. Eppinger of the Franklin County Court.

Judge Barbieri was appointed to the court as one of the last official acts of former Gov. Raymond P. Shafer to fill a vacancy. It was created by the death of Justice Herbert B. Cohen of York, the only other Democrat on the appellate bench. Judge Barbieri has been involved in court actions virtually ever since, including challenges by the current administration of Shafer's authority to make the appointment.

Justice Barbieri's latest victory came only a few days ago when his right to be listed on the Constitutional Party ticket was affirmed by the appellate court.

His colleague, Judge Eppinger, was nominated by the Constitutionalists at the May primary and at a party convention last summer the third party's ticket was completed with the selection of Justice Barbieri. The Democrats went to court to keep Barbieri off that ticket.

The Democrats were upset because whatever Constitutional Party votes the two Republicans get will be lumped with their GOP ballots. The benefits would be difficult to gauge, but whatever Constitutional ballots they get are bound to be a plus factor.

However little the governor's office may attach to the November results as a test of Shapp's personal prestige, he has been making considerable political hay around the state these last few weeks.

He is popping up at all sorts of party functions and fund-raising affairs. His office has an explanation. He got behind with his speech-making and personal appearances during the pressures of getting his legislative program adopted.

That program, of course, included the new 2.3 per cent flat income tax, which Republicans are counting upon to influence the election results.

Without stressing the political aspects of the case, Republicans also are quick to call attention to the fact that the Supreme Court is the "court of last resort" which can undo acts which have been signed, sealed and delivered by the legislature and the governor. That was the case when the court struck down the first 3.5 per cent graduated income tax because it violated the uniformity clause of the state Constitution.

Viewed in the collective sense, Republican spokesman Jones is looking to the local contests for mayor, a vacant seat in the U. S. House of Representatives, one in the state House, and control of the county courthouses for clues to the big election coming up in 1972.

It is hard to come by any claims from seasoned politicians on the outcome of the Philadelphia mayor's race, the centerpiece of this year's municipal elections.

Factors may be at work there between Democrat Frank Rizzo and Republican Thatcher Longstrech which have no bearing on how the wind blows in the balance of Pennsylvania.

Yet the size of the turnout and the majority rolled up in Philadelphia, which is top-heavy with Democrats on the registration books, might very well influence the outcome of the statewide races.

Robert E. Phelps, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, voiced reservations.

"I think it erodes confidence," Phelps said. "I would object to having a member of our legal staff serving on the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board. But in the final analysis, I would have to judge the individual on whether the relationship affects his performance."

to come before the State Labor Relations Board. It involved the issue of non-economic items, such as class size, and whether such issues must be part of collective bargaining.

The Labor Board took 21 specific issues, and in each case, ruled they were not bargainable items—although school boards did have to discuss them with teachers. The ruling is expected to set a precedent for future cases that bring up the same exact issues.

The State College Area Education Association and the school board presented their sides in a hearing last April before examiner Alan R. Krier, who made recommendations to the Labor Board. The Labor Board then issued its ruling, which was signed Oct. 14 and released Monday.

Krier is a member of a law firm that represents the Bellwood-Antis School District. Contacted by telephone, Krier admitted he personally handles a share of the soliciting work.

Both Krier and Malcolm B. Petrikin, chairman of the three-member Labor Relations Board, defended the use of solicitors, providing they showed impartiality.

UF Campaign Reaches $186,100—94% Of Goal

Although the industrial and special gifts divisions went "over the top" Tuesday afternoon in meeting their quotas, the United Fund campaign for $198,700 is still short $12,600 with ten days remaining in the annual drive, according to chairman H.T. Bright.

With all seven divisions reporting some increases over one week ago, the UF campaign reached $186,100 which is nearly 94 per cent of goal.

Leading the report was the industrial division whose combined gifts from corporations, executives and employees totaled $125,092, just passing the divisional quota of $124,650. There are several firms yet to report, according to chairman Ralph Grimm who hailed the work of his volunteers and of the company chairmen who made the industrial drive successful.

The other division to achieve its objective is special gifts whose chairman W.F. Crossett turned in total gifts of $27,675 against a quota of $27,500.

The commercial section, under the leadership of Charles Housel, is still hopeful of producing $10,200 but yesterday's report totaled $8,767 because there are still some sixty firms who have not returned their store contributions to the team worker calling on them.

Professional gifts now total $6,911 and chairman Jack Hampson is optimistic about reaching his quota of $7,550 when all returns are in.

Public service division (government and schools) is lagging, partly because of a late start in solicitation. The current total is $8,015 but chairman Andrew Donick predicts a substantial increase when reports are in from the State Hospital, the School District, and other government agencies. The quota is $16,650.

Richard Huber, residential chairman, turned in a new total of $5,337 toward an objective of $5,950 and Ursula Johnson, county chairman, reported $4,200 against a goal of $6,200.

Chairman Bright designated Monday, October 25 as the final report day for the campaign and urged cooperation from donors and workers in reaching the needed funds by that afternoon.

Antibiotics Don't Decrease Infections

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Despite the use of antibiotics for more than 25 years, the incidence of infections in persons with wounds from injury or operations has not decreased, a leading expert on infection reported Tuesday.

In fact, he said, antibiotics therapy may actually have increased the number and complexity of problems of infections.

The study of infection was reported by Dr. William A. Altemeier, a bacteriologist and surgeon, to the 57th annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons. He is a member of the Center of the Comprehensive Study of Trauma at the University of Cincinnati Medical school.

"After the general use of modern antibiotic therapy for more than a quarter of a century," Altemeier said, "it has become apparent that the over-all incidence of infection in the trauma (wound or injury) patient has not been decreased, that many related problems are still with us, and that the pattern of surgical infections is changing."

One estimate of the cost in dollars alone of wound infections is this country during 1967 was a minimum of $9.8 billion, he said.

Contract Negotiations Resume In 19-Day-Old Coal Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contract negotiations resumed Tuesday in the 19-day-old strike of some 80,000 coal miners in more than 20 states.

There had been no talks since last Thursday except for a brief meeting Friday, and President W. A. "Tony" Boyle of the United Mine Workers has said the nation could face serious power shortages this winter unless agreement is reached soon.

Major utility firms using coal for electric power generation reportedly have sufficient stockpiles for at least several more weeks, but Boyle said power shortages could begin to develop if the stocks are allowed to dwindle too low.

He said the industry so far has made no serious contact offer.

The strike has halted virtually all production of soft coal in the nation.

The negotiations are between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association representing some 80 per cent of the industry.

Boyle has listed demands to boost current top daily pay of $37 to $50; at least a doubling of the 40-cent-per-ton industry royalty paid into the union's Welfare and Retirement Fund; a provision for sick pay; and other contract improvements. Boyle argues that increased worker productivity would make the requested pay boost non-inflationary.

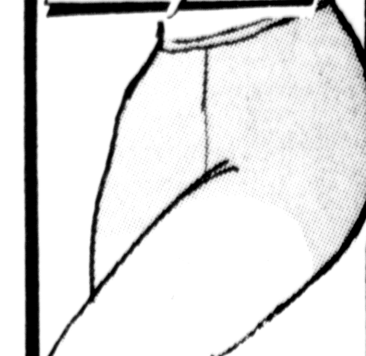

Boyle has accused the industry of hiding behind the federal wage-price freeze and President Nixon's planned wage restraints to follow the freeze.

He said the striking miners won't go back to work until they win an acceptable contract. He said "huge fuel conglomerates" and big steel companies" are dominating the bargaining and refusing to reach a settlement.

R. Heath Lacey, vice chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., is chief negotiator for the coal industry.

Use Of School Board Solicitor In Hearing Raises Big Question

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Labor Relations Board said Tuesday it used a Blair County school board solicitor as hearing examiner in a dispute between teachers and school officials in State College.

The disclosure brings up a key question not yet extensively discussed under the state's 1970 public employee bargaining law: whether it's unfair to appoint a school board attorney as an impartial hearing examiner.

The State College case was one of the most important teacher-school board disputes

PSEA Will Appeal PLRB's Ruling

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Education Association (PSEA) announced Tuesday it will appeal the ruling by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board (PLRB) that school boards need not negotiate on class size and noneconomic issues.

PSEA Executive Secretary Robert E. Phelps charged that the PLRB's ruling contradicted the intent of the Public Employees Act "which authorizes bargaining on working conditions."

Help For Elderly

While Congress has for a long time recognized that medicare will fail to function in the manner intended until a provision is made to reimburse the elderly for prescription drugs, the struggle to amend the act has never quite made the grade. But the legislators, showing true concern for the aged, have established an enviable record in giving it the old college try.

On February 4, 1965, H. R. 4351 was introduced which contained a provision to cover the costs of drugs and medicines approved via a doctor's prescription.

On March 26, 1965, H. R. 6675 was introduced and, with amendment became the medicare law.

On April 9, 1965, the proposed Drug Stamp Act was introduced. This would have provided prescription drugs to the aged through a separate program.

On June 28, 1965, an amendment to H. R. 6675 which would have included the cost of prescription drugs was introduced as a supplement to the medicare program.

On June 30, 1966, S. 3578 was introduced proposing a committee be appointed to determine qualified drugs and the allowable expense if and when prescription drugs were to be furnished elderly patients. This bill was later amended to comply with H. R. 13103.

On October 13, 1966, the Senate adopted H. R. 13103 as amended. On October 19, 1966, the "Douglas" amendment was deleted after a Senate conference with the House.

On February 20, 1967, at the request of the administration, H. R. 5710, was passed and provided changes in the social security program, but did not contain any provisions to include the cost of outpatient drugs under the medicare program.

In August of 1967, three bills were introduced in the Senate to provide payments toward outpatient drug costs. Then later in the year, S. 2299 was introduced, but this bill did not add any benefits. It did, however, offer the formulary provisions which would be necessary to any federal drug program.

Presently, with the introduction of S. 936 and a companion bill introduced in the House last February, the future is brightening for the elderly saddled with heavy prescription drug costs. Perhaps the time is at hand when unkept promises, lengthy studies, and studies of studies will end. A time that can't arrive too soon for the 10 per cent of the nation's citizens who, because of advancing age and its ailments, purchase 25 per cent of all prescription drugs.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round Jack Anderson

ANDERSON IN SEPTEMBER, OTHERS IN OCTOBER
Jack Anderson gave a detailed report September 19 on the Democrats' efforts to reform their national convention. He revealed which states had and had not complied with 18 reforms laid down by the Democratic National Committee. Anderson concluded that the Democrats "won't clear the smoke out of the backrooms, eliminate political deals nor stop the wining and dining of delegates. But they have already adopted reforms that should assure the most honestly elected delegates in party history." In October, other newspapers picked up the story and confirmed both Anderson's report and conclusion.

MESS IN MICRONESIA
WASHINGTON—The smell of scandal is blowing in from Micronesia far out in the Pacific. The ugly odor could forebode serious trouble on islands where Americans fought some of the bloodiest battles of World War II.

More than 10,000 islands are scattered like dust specks throughout the Pacific. Exactly 2,141 of them, known collectively as Micronesia, are ruled by the U.S.

These islands, like idle volcanoes, have been quiet since World War II. But now that the U.S. is pulling back from Asia, military leaders are quietly eyeing the Pacific islands as a forward line of defense. Secret proposals are already under study to establish new bases in the Pacific.

But the U.S. tragically has botched its trusteeship of Micronesia. A succession of political hacks from the States has governed the islands, often in the manner that Northern carpetbaggers ruled the South after the Civil War.

Today, many islanders who hailed their liberation from the Japanese nearly three decades ago would prefer to have the Japanese back.

The Interior Department, which administers Micronesia, has gotten wind of the distant scandal and has sent investigator Ivan Kestner to find out what's brewing. He has received an earful of charges. Here are just a few of them:

'GROSS IRREGULARITIES'

—Since the end of World War II, the U.S. has spent hundreds of millions of dollars throughout the trust territory. However, the money has been largely squandered, and the Micronesians have received only minimum benefits. "Gross irregularities" have been alleged in the administration of government contracts. These include illegal change orders that have benefitted favored contractors. There has also been too little monitoring of construction contracts.

—High Commissioner Edward E. Johnston, formerly a Republican hanger-on in Hawaii, allegedly "has used his office to support his various business interests and the business interests of his friends and associates." He has also been accused of neglecting his duties and lording it over the natives.

—Both the high commissioner and his top law officer, Richard Miyamoto, have been charged with violating the basic principles of contracting. One contract inspector, Robert Meyer, reported several serious contract violations, but he was ignored or overruled so often that last month he resigned in disgust. Cited as "typical" of what's going on in the islands is the case of a procurement official who three years ago was a low-paid clerk but now allegedly owns three expensive houses on Guam.

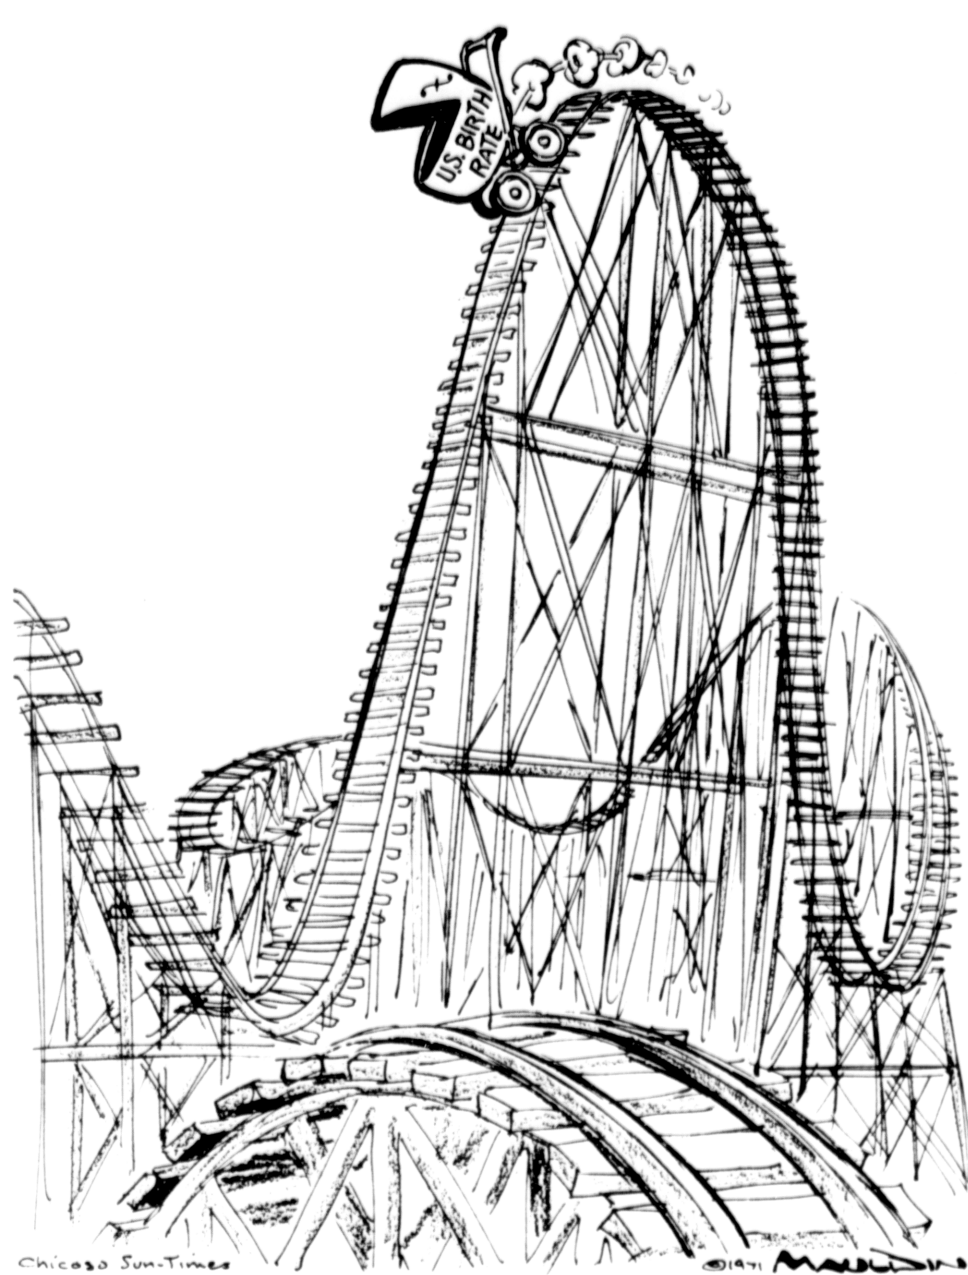

These are just a few of the charges Kestner is investigating — charges, of course, that haven't been proven and that Johnston and Miyamoto have denied. Yet something evidently is amiss in Micronesia. The natives, once passive, are becoming restive, and the islands no longer seem as remote from the world's hurly-burly.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Ecology Be Damned — House Interior Chairman Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., is asking the taxpayers for $133,995 to show that strip mining and oil drilling is good for the environment. He hired New York lawyer Edward Weidenfall as a committee consultant to help masterminding the campaign. In a confidential, 12-page memo, Weidenfall proposed holding hearings on oil, gas, coal and other sources of energy. This is a subject that has been neglected by Congress. But Weidenfall's memo is heavy on how the public should swallow the demands of the energy industry and short on what strip mining and oil spills will do to the ecology. Weidenfall also proposes press conferences and off-the-record briefings: for the old Colorado pepper pot to promote the oil-gas-coal side of the ecology issue.

Money for Mills — House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., grumped to friends the other day that he was "going broke" traveling around the country to make speeches. With an eye on the White House, he has been accepting just about every speaking engagement he can get. He has received "thousands of offers" of financial help, he said, to finance his unannounced presidential campaign. But so far he has turned down all contributions. Sitting in his shirt sleeves, he quickly leafed through a newspaper as he chatted with his friends. He paused briefly at the comic section. "I might have to start taking some financial help from somewhere," he allowed.

Reverse Discrimination — Some contractors feel President Nixon is doing too good a job for minority businesses. Nine small contractors have protested to Rep. Joel Broyhill, R-Va., that they have been discriminated against by the federal government in favor of black firms. They have cited construction contracts that were awarded to minority-owned businesses without bids by various government agencies. The white contractors claim they could do the jobs, in some cases, for half what the taxpayers are paying the minority firms.

JIM BISHOP: REPORTER The Short-Lived Freedom Of Cuba

(KFS) — Lest we forget...

It is almost a dozen years since I flew to Cuba to watch the birth of liberty. I am still waiting. On New Year's Eve, General Eulogio Cantillo, delivering a toast at a dismal dinner in Camp Columbia, said: "For the salvation of the Republic, the military forces have decided that it is necessary for General Batista to withdraw."

Word had reached Havana that a trainload of government troops had refused to disembark to fight a small band of rebels commanded by Major Ernesto Guevara. He had taken Las Villas with ease, and then fought his way through the streets of Santa Clara. His superior, Dr. Fidel Castro Ruz, proclaimed Judge Manuel Urrutia president of Cuba. Castro was far from gunfire in Santiago de Cuba.

Batista fled. He lined up planes, and took banknotes, gold, jewelry and his family. He and Senora Batista and one son flew to Dominica. Seven other children landed at New Orleans, Jacksonville and New York. In his home, I counted 16 suitcases of solid silver too heavy for the planes. On his Ampex record player, a Red Seal copy of "The Blue Danube" spun silently. On the lawn a statue of his dead dachshund stared morosely.

In the morning, all Havana wore "26th of July" armbands. "The Great Liberator," still cautious, required three weeks to enter Havana in a tank, pelted with flowers. "Power does not interest me," he shouted through his beard, "and I will not take it." He opened his arms joyously. "From now on, the people are entirely free!"

At the palace, he stared at the frenzied screaming crowd with disgust. "I never did like this palace," he shouted, "and I know you don't either. Maybe the new government will change our feelings." He held a finger up: "Peace with liberty! Peace with justice! Peace with individual rights!"

I wired that Cuba was about to become a Communist commune. Some editors reminded me that my opinion was running counter to "The New York Times," the "Herald-Tribune," the "Chicago Tribune" and "Life." That's a formidable group. Besides, the Catholic bishop of Havana asked me to change the story. "I know the Castro family," he said. "Very religious. No Communists."

I had interviewed some barbudos. I chatted with "Che" Guevara as he hugged two grateful girls. The movement was either Communist, or the Communists were converted to democracy. Castro had 28 Batista men tried and shot, but the trials were too slow. Nine more were shot without a hearing.

At Santiago's Camp de Trio, bulldozers dug a 40-foot trench. Six priests heard confessions. The condemned were rolled out in buses, their hands tied behind their backs. Some cried. Some pleaded. A few were silent. The priests led the blindfolded to the edge of the trench, and ran. The crack of rifles spit in the night air.

American TV men asked the firing squad to hold off until daylight. Lieut. Enrique Despage wrote a last note to his son and called his own firing order. On the hills, the crowds, mostly women, roared: "Kill! Kill!" Castro said he was killing to avenge mothers. He puffed on Montecristo cigars, aptly labeled.

For The Good Of The Revolution

In 70 days, Castro, who despised power, appointed himself premier and dictator. "It distresses me," he said, "but it is necessary for the good of the revolution." When a court acquitted 45 Batistas, Castro reversed the verdict and ordered all of them shot.

In 110 days, he was in Washington, guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He said he wanted "better to understand the United States." Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter hosted him at a champagne luncheon. In the office of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the Capitol, statesmen fawned over "The Great Liberator."

"The July 26 movement," he said soothingly, "is not a Communist movement. Its members are Roman Catholics, mostly. We have no intention of expropriating American property, and any property we take we'll pay for."

Major Ernesto Guevara remained in Havana, reading it and grinning. When President Urrutia denounced Communists as criminals, Castro and Guevara arranged for 250,000 Cubans to stand before the palace and roar: "Pa-re-don! To the wall!"

"People of Cuba!" Fidel stated, "Life is not important. All that is important is the destiny of the nation." That time he told the truth.

Death Penalty Bombshell

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG—Ticking away in the Rules Committee of the State Senate is another in a series of death penalty bombshells which periodically burst on the Commonwealth scene.

This one is in the form of a Resolution submitted by Senator Richard A. Snyder of Lancaster County in which he severely criticizes Governor Shapp for participating as a "friend of the court" in an action before the U.S. Supreme Court to abolish capital punishment.

The pros and cons of executions can be argued from now to doomsday but two sidelights of the Governor's recent action would seem to bear perusal.

First, insofar as this column can determine, there was no advance (or even subsequent) notification from the Governor's office to his constituents (the people of Pennsylvania) that he was taking this important step.

Secondly, there is the Governor's oft-repeated resolve that no one will die in the electric chair while he is in office.

Both of those sidelights bear inspection from the standpoint of Milton J. Shapp the Governor of Pennsylvania and not from the standpoint of Milton J. Shapp, private citizen.

For in his capacity as a private individual, Mr. Shapp has unquestionable right to his own opinion since after all, this is a basic, inherent right of all Americans.

But it's a different ballgame when his actions stem from his position as the elected Governor of Pennsylvania's 12-million citizenry.

Seemingly, it is almost axiomatic that Governor Shapp owed it to the people he is governing to reveal that he was about to take this very important step regarding a highly emotional issue. (After all, the signature of the Governor of the third largest state in the country would obviously carry important weight in the eyes of even such an august body as the U.S. Supreme Court.)

But even more crucial perhaps is the question of how will the personal objection of Citizen Shapp toward the death penalty square with the sworn allegiance of Governor Shapp to carry out the law of the Commonwealth?

For no individual feelings, whether they be the Governor's or any other Pennsylvanian's, can wipe the death penalty off the books of Pennsylvania law—that can be done only by an act of the Legislature or by court ruling.

Considering the fact that all the State Representatives and half the State Senators will be up for re-election (at least those who wish to) next year, it is extremely doubtful that they would consider repeal now or even later during the Shapp Administration.

So it would appear that of the two alternatives, a U.S. Supreme Court ruling abolishing the death penalty would come before State Legislature repeal.

But there are a little more than three years to go in the Shapp Administration and maybe another four years on top of that (if the Governor decides to run again and is re-elected).

Does that mean that for the next three years (and possibly seven) the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will abrogate his sworn duty?

As Governor, Mr. Shapp will of course have the final say when faced with the unenviable choice of whether an actual specific execution is to be carried out or not. And if at that point he as Governor orders a halt, he will, of course, have acted totally within his official responsibility.

But to declare in advance a blanket promise that no executions will be carried out during his administration—without even knowing the specifics of any of the cases—is something else indeed!

Meanwhile, it will be interesting to see what happens (or doesn't happen) to the Snyder Resolution. The political facts of the matter are the State Legislature and the Governor are of the same party—and traditionally in cases like this embarrassment is avoided.

Economic Stabilization Power

By STANLEY L. WILLIAMS
Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON -- Congress seems inclined to enact some changes in the economic stabilization power President Nixon used to embark on his new economic policy.

Some of the changes gathering support in the "banking" committees of Congress would restrict the authority under which Mr. Nixon imposed the wage-price freeze Aug. 15. The President called upon the same authority Oct. 7 when he outlined his Phase Two post-freeze plans to stabilize the economy.

Other changes would enlarge the President's power. Most of these, too, appeared to have substantial support in the House and Senate "banking" committees, which were to handle the legislation. Committee approval would give any changes a strong chance -- though not assurance -- of enactment.

Economic Phase Two

In a dramatic policy shift, Mr. Nixon undertook his new program to stabilize and stimulate the economy under authority granted him by the Economic Stabilization Act. Congress passed the law in 1970 and extended it earlier this year until April 30, 1972. The law empowered him to control wages, salaries, prices and rents.

In outlining Phase Two, Mr. Nixon said he would ask Congress for a one-year extension of the Act and for authority to control interest rates and dividends. He also urged swift passage of his tax bill, which was designed to speed up economic growth. The House passed the bill Oct. 6.

Although the President proposed to move against "windfall" profits -- large profits accruing as a result of controlled wages and costs -- by requiring price rollbacks, Mr. Nixon made it clear that he would not ask for profit controls. Higher profits, he said, would confer economic benefits on everyone.

One Likely Change

Among efforts to restrict the President's power, the best chance of approval was given to a proposal to incorporate into the law the Wage Board and the Price Commission -- the key administrative bodies in the structure Mr. Nixon devised to stabilize the economy.

As this idea was generally conceived, the boards would be established by an amendment to the Act. Their members would be appointed by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate. Their powers would be assigned.

As an embellishment, criteria might be prescribed -- such as productivity and the cost of living, in the case of wages -- which the boards should apply in establishing guidelines for various industries.

The amendment would meet the criticism, accepted by many in Congress, that broad economic power should not be exercised by bodies that were not elected, not established by law and not confirmed. It also would prevent any future move by Mr. Nixon to change the makeup or the authority of the boards.

Dividends and Profits

Another proposal was to add to the law authority for the President to control interest rates, dividends and profits and require Mr. Nixon to invoke all the authority at once or not at all.

This would meet two of organized labor's chief criticisms of the President's program -- that profits were not controlled and that the current freeze was being applied unevenly and unfairly to different sectors of the economy, particularly to labor. House committee sources said the proposal had some support there.

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin introduced a bill to restrict the President to use of selective controls. Proxmire's bill would permit controls only in industries (such as automobile manufacturing) with independent power to raise prices despite market conditions and those (such as health services) with a shortage of trained personnel, facilities or other resources.

Additions to Law

Favorable congressional action was virtually assured on several additions to the law. These were expected to be requested by the President. They included:

+Standby authority to control dividends, which Mr. Nixon said he probably would not need but would ask for as a safeguard.

+Judicial review, through a panel of sitting federal judges, to reduce the likelihood of conflicting rulings on wage and price cases in federal courts.

+Subpoena power, to strengthen the Pay Board and the Price Commission.

+Authorization of funds, to finance the activities of the boards and committees operating the program.

In addition, a provision added to the Act this year, which forbade application of controls to a single industry, was considered likely to be repealed.

Mr. Nixon's request for authority over interest rates was expected to meet some opposition on grounds that he had been given authority over credit in a 1969 Act but had not used it. Administration officials regarded the authority of the Credit Control Act of 1969 as deficient for the President's current purposes.

Nixon's Puzzling 'Diplomacy'

By James Reston

The Nixon administration's "diplomacy" on the China question at the United Nations is a puzzle. At the very moment when Henry Kissinger is arriving in Peking to help "normalize" Washington's relations with the Peoples Republic of China, U.S. Ambassador Bush is lobbying and arguing for votes to keep Nationalist China in the U.N. as if he were the Texas State Chairman at the Republican National Convention.

It is barely possible—no more than that—that Peking would understand the President's policy of not abandoning the Nationalists. After all, a nation often has to be responsible even for its blunders, but it is not at all likely that they will understand the administration's pressure tactics on the uncommitted nations in the U.N. debate.

This is all the more puzzling because the main objective of Mr. Kissinger's present mission to Peking outside of establishing an agenda and setting up technical communications—is to try to establish an atmosphere of trust, a feeling that the President's forthcoming talks with Chou En-Lai are only the beginning of a long process in which disagreements on specific questions are unavoidable, but the clear objective of which is the creation of mutual respect leading to a better world order.

If this is indeed the objective as the President has implied in public and emphasized in private then Ambassador Bush's smoky-room tactics and Capitol Hill rhetoric are hard to understand, for it is clear that no really effective new world order can be created without the help of the Chinese Communists, whereas it is possible that such a thing could be done without the Chinese Nationalists.

Mr. Kissinger wrote a perceptive book on American foreign policy called "The Necessity For Choice," the theme of which was, things are tough all around but let's make up our minds, and it may be that this is the problem. The administration has made up its mind on keeping both Peking and Taiwan in the U.N., which is good domestic politics, but it has not made up its mind on "the necessity for choice" between Peking and Taiwan, which, when accompanied by backstairs threats of cutting U. N. appropriations and foreign aid, is both bad diplomacy and bad foreign policy.

Of course, it may be that there is an explanation. Maybe Kissinger and Chou En-Lai reached an understanding in their first meeting that the China seat question was something apart and Washington was going to use all the influence at its command to put Peking in the U.N. while retaining Taiwan at least in the General Assembly.

But I found no evidence of this in Peking, and nobody in Washington even suggests that there was such a deal. So the puzzle remains. For the question of creating a better world order is still the main issue, and the chance to do it now while Chou En-Lai is still Prime Minister is better than it is likely to be later on, and this critical and presiding issue of making a new start in world affairs, and making the United Nations a representative forum of all the great nations is something beyond questions of American politics or the short-term interests of either Washington or Peking.

It is a question for the nations to decide on its merits. After all, even John Foster Dulles, the theological architect of America's policy of containment in Asia, wrote in the early fifties that the United Nations must represent the world as it is and not just the world as we would like it to be. In fact, he added, we do not like the expansion of Communism in China at all, but if the Communists actually control it, then they should be in the United Nations.

As a matter of fact, it was precisely this argument by Dulles that long ago began to appeal to Richard Nixon's pragmatism and undoubtedly contributed to his bold initiative to "normalize" relations with Communist China. But here again, his sense of politics and his sense of history tend to come into conflict, and he avoids "the necessity for choice" by doing something on one side and something else on the other.

This is not to say that he doesn't have strong arguments for his ambiguity. It does seem ridiculous to vote into the U.N. fragments of state from Africa and elsewhere and at the same time bounce the Chinese Nationalists who do govern 14-million people. Also, maybe expelling the Nationalists would set a precedent in the U.N. that would threaten other states, though this has obviously been used as a scare tactic.

But even so, the Nixon administration seems to be operating on an assumption which really has no visible means of support. It is assuming—or at least hoping—that Peking will accept the compromise of admission to the U.N. while Taiwan is still in the organization, especially since—the argument in Washington goes—Peking will have the seat in the Security Council as the representative of all the Chinese people.

This, it is said at the State Department would give Peking the opportunity to take the security council seat, where the Nationalists would not be sitting, and allow them simply to ignore the General Assembly seat, while the Nationalists were sitting in that body.

But unless there is some deal about all this, which I don't believe, the administration's assumptions and tactics are really hard to fathom, and must be an awkward embarrassment for Kissinger in Peking.

After all, the President didn't have to start down this road if he couldn't choose between Peking and Taiwan. Or even if he decided not to choose, he still had strong points on his side. But making a world sensation out of Kissinger's first trip to "normalize" relations with Communists, and then launching a power campaign on behalf of the Nationalists which the Communists have clearly said they will not tolerate—this is the puzzle of the administration domestic and foreign politics which only the U.N. members can resolve.

EAST SIDE GAS LEAK

Fire Chief Erm Fitzgerald looks on Tuesday as an excavation crew digs for evidence of a gas main leak near the borough side of the Glade Bridge. Reportedly a 1 to 2 inch hole in an 8-inch main was uncovered and except for a lot of noise and flying dirt the situation was quickly corrected by decreasing the pressure in the main and patching the hole. No resident was inconvenienced by the break as the gas supply was diverted around the problem area.

A spokesman for Columbia Gas Co. said 160 pounds was on the line but permanent repairs were completed. He stressed the company's concern for public safety, this being the reason why the local fire department and police were called in as back up. (Photo by Mansfield)

ASCS Accepts Nominations For Committee Chairmen

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office is receiving nominations for its annual election of community chairmen, according to Charles Camp, chairman, Warren County ASC Committee.

ASCS communities are geographical areas of the county, consisting of three communities designated by the County ASC committee for administration of farm programs. In each community, farmers elect three farmer committeemen to assist in developing ASCS policy, explain farm programs and provide local judgment and information needed to properly administer programs.

Persons eligible to vote in this election and eligible to nominate candidates must be of legal voting age and have an interest in a farm as owner or tenant or be below voting age but conducting all farm operations, and be eligible to participate in an ASCS program in the community.

Each community will have a slate of at least six nominees. Eligible voters may nominate candidates by petition. Each petition is limited to one nominee and must be signed by at least three eligible voters in the community. Each petition must also contain certification that the nominee will serve if elected. All petitions must be received at the County ASCS office by Oct. 27.

The election will be conducted by mail, according to Camp. Ballots will be mailed to eligible voters not later than Nov. 19. Each voter may vote for not more than three candidates. Eligible voters not receiving a ballot may obtain one from the County ASCS office. Ballots must be properly completed and returned to the office by Wednesday, Dec. 1 and will be counted at 10 a.m., Dec. at the court house.

New WAHS Basketball Coach Plans Oct. 26 Physical Exams

Ed McGlumphy has circled Oct. 26 on his calendar. That's the day the new head basketball coach at Warren High School has set for physicals for all varsity and junior varsity candidates.

McGlumphy, who has 15 years of coaching experience in Ohio and Pennsylvania, will open regular daily practices the following Monday, Nov. 1.

The new head mentor came out of Washington-Jefferson College in Washington, Pa., where he lettered in basketball and tennis for four years and football for one.

He began his coaching career in Stone Creek, Ohio, leading his team to the county championship and a 31-14 record in two years. McGlumphy then returned to his hometown in Ohio, Martin's Ferry, and stayed four years, adding two sectional titles and one district crown. His record was an outstanding 60-29.

A one-year stop at Cambridge, Ohio, brought on a 11-10 mark; then it was on to Pennsylvania basketball at Hickory Twp. In six years there, McGlumphy took his charges to five sectional championships and one District 10 title, while rolling over opponents for a 86-40 record.

McGlumphy then accepted a real challenge, the head coaching position at Charleroi, where basketball victory had not been experienced for 50 consecutive games. He proceeded to turn that around, guiding the team to a fifth-place spot in his first year, and up two notches to third last season.

McGlumphy brings with him the attitude and basketball philosophy needed when assuming a new coaching post. When asked what type of offense the Dragons would be running, he indicated he would play what is dictated by the material. "If we have players who can run, we'll run. If not, we'll play something else," McGlumphy said.

Named to the Warren basketball family so far are Don Smith, who will handle the junior varsity squad, and Jan Garrett, coach of the ninth graders. Eighth and seventh, grade coaches will be announced later.

Ike's Girls Nip Warren

Eisenhower girls, behind the 15 point effort of Jo Lynn Beedle, nudged the Warren girls in basketball action Tuesday, 32-30.

Hallie Bunk was again high for the Dragonettes with 11 markers. Sherrie Brainerd tossed in eight.

In other action, Tidioute managed a three point victory over East Forest, 36-33. Barb Knight paced Tidioute with 18 points, but scoring honors went to Pam McDonald of EF, who hit for 22.

Eisenhower 32, Warren 30
Warren—Hallie Bunk, 5-11; Sherrie Brainerd, 4-8; Ann Burkett, 1-3; Mary Brown, 2-0; Gayle Pesko, 1-0; Diane Walker, 1-0. Totals, 14-2-30.
Eisenhower—Jo Lynn Beedle, 7-15; Debbie Grieb, 3-0; Stacey Currie, 2-5; Marcy Allison, 2-0; Cindy Marsh, 2-0. Totals, 15-2-32.

Bucks Remain NBA Unbeaten

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The unbeaten Milwaukee Bucks streaked to leads of 18-3 and 31-11, then coasted to a 116-82 National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers Tuesday night.

Kareem Jabbar, the former Lew Alcindor, led the Bucks with 24 points, but scored only two during the first 11 minutes, when the defending NBA champions broke open the game.

Lucius Allen supported Jabbar with 18 points, while Bob Dandridge—who scored eight of his team's first 14 points—finished with 17.

O'Neil Held To One Return

Ed O'Neil, the former Warren Area High grizzer now playing in the defensive backfield for Penn State, handled one punt in Saturday's game with Syracuse and lost 11 yards returning it.

Penn State blasted the Orangemen, 31-0.

Delaware Leading Lambert Cup Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Delaware, 5-0 after a 48-7 rout of Rutgers last Saturday again, was the unanimous leader, in this week's balloting for the Lambert Cup, presented annually to the top Division II College football team in the East.

West Chester, also 5-0, and Lehigh, 5-1 were next in the voting by an eight-man committee of sports writers, broadcasters and athletic directors.

NHL Players Protest Ban On Bruins' Outside Acts

BOSTON (AP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association has protested the Boston Bruins' management's ban on outside activities for Bruins players, it was reported Tuesday.

The Boston Globe said the protest was confirmed Monday by R. Alan Eagleson, executive director of the players' association.

"We have mailed the notice of protest to Charles W. Mulcahy in his capacity as chairman of the owners group in the owners players council—and not in his capacity as an official of the Bruins," Eagleson said.

Mulcahy is a Boston lawyer and vice president and general counsel of the Bruins.

"Our office took this action at the instigation of player representatives from two other teams, not the Bruins," Eagleson said. "The fact is that not one of the Bruins players so much as lifted a phone to call me with a complaint in this matter."

New Nickname For Irish: 'The Stormin' Shamrocks'

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Forget the "Fighting Irish."

Well, maybe don't forget 'em—but make room for the "Stormin' Shamrocks."

That's what sixth-ranked Notre Dame's defensive front four is called on campus here and they're making themselves pretty well on some other campuses, too.

The entire Irish defense has called the tune in Notre Dame's five victories this season, but defensive ends Walt Patulski and Fred "Swede" Swendsen and defensive tackles Mike Kadish and Greg Marx, all seniors, have been the maestros.

Patulski, 6-foot-5 and 260 pounds, is generally considered the leader of the front four and, in Saturday's 16-0 victory over North Carolina, he was just that, making three solo tackles and eight assists.

Notre Dame's five opponents this season have been held to an average of 65.8 yards per game rushing and 110.6 yards passing.

Notre Dame has slipped ahead of Michigan into the national leadership in defense against scoring. The Irish have given up only 16 points while the Wolverines have allowed 25.

"The tackles are the best in the country," says Patulski. "Mike is so strong at 270 pounds, yet he's quick. Greg is also strong, so the ends don't have to worry about stopping the inside rushing game. Those two take care of that job.

"Fred and I can concentrate on our job-containing the outside rushing game and putting pressure on the passer."

The offense has piled up an average of 289.4 yards a game. Using as many as nine running backs in a game several times this season, it has rolled for 203.8 yards per game on the ground.

Next on the agenda for Coach Ara Parseghian's Irish are the Trojans of Southern California, 2-4 this year. They are the nemesis of past seasons, including last year, and have wrecked unbeaten seasons for Notre Dame four times.

When Parseghian was asked if he is disappointed with this team's national ranking, he said: "The important thing, it seems to me, is don't lose. I don't think there is a requisite for a certain amount of points to win. Basically, we are not interested in statistics—just the final score."

Tidioute Faculty Bops Student Varsity, 8-5

Tidioute High baseball coach Jim Scalise finally broke his coaching loss string after an 0-8 season—but the victory came against his own team.

Scalise helmed a faculty team that played the Tidioute High varsity and copped an 8-5 victory Tuesday, though his student players put up a stubborn resistance. The creaky teachers, who relied on long-ball power to win, (one anonymous source said they couldn't run well enough to do it any other way), rode Chuck Huffman's three-run homer in the fifth inning to the victory. Huffman's homer broke open a 5-5 tie.

Winning pitcher Bill Burleigh and Dan Giffin also homered for the faculty, while Frank Cotterman doubled for the students. Ted Nuttall took the loss, according to Jim Manchester, who reported the game.

National College Football Title Game In Works?

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Officials of major college football bowls, ABC-TV and the NCAA, will meet in Chicago Wednesday to try to work out a national college championship game for 1972, it was reported here Tuesday.

Such a game has been talked about for years as one way of ending the annual debate over which team is really No.1.

Tom Siler, sports editor of the Knoxville News-Sentinel reported plans for the meeting Tuesday. Siler said the goal of the meeting is a game between the two top teams in the nation the first or second week in December.

ABC wants the game as a climax of its telecasting season. The NCAA wants it for the money it would bring. Bowl officials oppose it for fear it would lessen the attendance of their games.

"We are going and we are going to listen," Siler quoted one bowl official. "That's all, just listen. I don't see how we could ever accommodate such a game."

Another bowl official, Siler said, commented: "It's a great idea, but what effect is it going to have on the bowls? That's what we want to know."

Jim Decker of Syracuse University, chairman of the NCAA's TV committee, will present the proposal to the bowl agents.

Bowls represented will include the Rose, Orange, Cotton, Sugar, Gator, Bluebonnet, Sun and Liberty.

Siler also said that the NCAA Council—which would have to give final approval for such a game—will meet in Kansas City next week to consider the results of the Chicago meeting.

"We would call this the Hall of Fame Game," Decker was quoted. "Some of the money would go to the Hall of Fame, which needs the money."

"In the past, TV ratings have dropped late in the college season. If we can work out this game we'd have a package much more attractive for Madison Avenue."

Still-Leafy Woodlands Present Problem For Autumn Hunters

A Pa. Game Commission News Release

Hunters in Pennsylvania can expect to find adequate populations of wildlife species as small game seasons open this fall, but the Game Commission warns that hunting conditions will require special safety precautions.

Lush vegetation throughout most of the state will be a big problem during the early part of the seasons, and sportsmen will have trouble being seen by other outdoorsmen.

The use of conspicuously-colored clothing is strongly recommended by Game Commission officers to aid in visibility.

Fluorescent orange is more readily identified than any other color, according to results of exhaustive safety tests, and experience shows its use will definitely reduce the incidence of shooting accidents.

The few pennies spent for a fluorescent orange cap and vest are just about the best investment a hunter can make.

Sportsmen know they have to check impulses to shoot before clearly identifying their targets. Movement in habitat likely to support wildlife could be escaping game, but it might also be another person, a dog, etc.

Speaking of dogs, Game Commission personnel advise hunters that it will be to their advantage to make greater use of canines. When hunting in dense cover, dogs generally find more game than outdoorsmen who depend entirely on their own ability to flush wildlife.

And, after a hunter scores on legal wildlife, it is often much easier to retrieve the game if a dog is along to help locate the quarry.

Those who have not been afield since hunting seasons last year find that early in the season their reflexes are just a bit slow when swinging on game, and may try to compensate for this by hurrying their shots. This can be a dangerous practice.

Adequate food supplies generally are in evidence when ground cover is dense, and this year is no exception. A good supply of rain and other favorable weather factors in most of the state this summer combined to produce an excellent crop of grapes, cherries, acorns, etc., in many areas.

Helicopter A Life Saver

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A helicopter pad on a hospital roof in the middle of a center city skyscraper complex. It's a lifesaver, especially for the newborn.

Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, founded 148 years ago by what is the largest and one of the oldest private medical colleges in America, is starting the chopper ambulance to provide swift help for accident victims and premature babies. It is located six blocks from historic Independence Hall.

"Traveling crowded highways from outlying areas may cause a delay in reaching the hospital," says Dr. Francis J. Sweeney, Jr., Jefferson's director. "It could spell the difference between life and death or irreversible damage."

Dr. Mary Louise Soentgen, director of Jefferson's nursery, says time is essential in the life of a baby born with problems.

"If these babies were cared for promptly, within an hour or two after birth in an intensive care nursery with highly specialized equipment and techniques, many who now survive with some degree of neurological damage, would instead be healthy children," Dr. Soentgen says.

She notes that 40,000 babies are born in the United States annually who weigh less than 3½ pounds. Half of these die and nearly half of those who survive have some type of brain damage.

"Institutions go all out for the elderly, and for the heart patients," Dr. Soentgen says. "We must do everything possible—and speed is the prime first step—to give premature infants a whole lifetime of normal living."

This was why Jefferson's Women's Board raised $85,000 to launch the helicopter service which begins formally this week. The chopper, serving 24 hospitals in Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, will land on a 14th floor roof.

Sweeney says the pad, 39 by 48 feet, is reinforced to permit landings without disturbing patients on floors below. The chopper, able to carry four passengers and pilot, can land in winds up to 25 miles per hour.

A high rim surrounds the pad to prevent spilled fuel from falling into the street below.

A TRIBUTE: One of the fathers of radar was honored by Penn State in "a working testimonial." It was an unusual thank-you to Dr. Ernest C. Pollard, who retired last summer as head of the university's bio-physics department, which he founded a decade ago. Ten years earlier he organized a similar department at Yale after leaving the field of nuclear science.

In two symposia, former students and scientist friends discussed trends in two areas Pollard emphasized: the teaching of science and research on the bacterial cell. "Pollard's main contribution as a teacher," says one colleague, "was to dispel the prevailing mythology that scientists are cold, dispassionate collectors of facts, and that science is dull."

"He stimulated an appreciation of the beauty that is inherent in the reality science investigates."

That takes a man with imagination, humor and warmth—and Pollard is still that way as he continues his research.

CONFUSED BY KILT SYDNEY (AP)—Allan Fraser asked the Australian Customs Department the tariff on uniforms imported from Scotland for a highland band. "Not only did the rate of duty shock me," he says, "but the news that the department officially classifies the kilt as female apparel."

Supreme Court To Rule On Intervention In UMW Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to decide if the campaign manager of the late Joseph Yablonski should be allowed to intervene in a government suit seeking to overturn the United Mine Workers election that Yablonski lost.

Mike Trbovich, Yablonski's campaign manager in the 1969 election and the current chairman of the dissident UMW faction, Miners for Democracy, filed the suit against Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson and the United Mine Workers of America.

The case will be heard later this session.

Trbovich is attempting to intervene in the suit so that he can bring up alleged election irregularities which the government has refused to bring into the case. The government suit against UMW currently is being heard in U.S. District Court here.

Both the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia and the U.S. Circuit Court here ruled the Landrum-Griffin act prohibited Trbovich from intervening.

The act expressly prohibits union members from bringing suit themselves alleging election irregularities, but makes no mention as to whether union members can intervene in a suit filed by the secretary against their union.

The 1969 election matched Yablonski against the incumbent union president, W. A. Tony Boyle. Boyle won the election by a vote of 80,577 to 46,073.

Shortly after the election, Yablonski filed election challenges with the UMW and served copies on the Labor Department. Eighteen days later, the bodies of Yablonski, his wife and daughter were discovered in their Clarksville, Pa., home.

The current government suit against Boyle and the union alleges the UMW failed to provide secret balloting, failed to provide adequate safeguards to insure a fair election, denied candidates the right to have observers at polling places and present where ballots were counted and violated its constitution in that many locals failed to elect tellers and hold membership meetings to set the time and place for elections.

It also alleges the UMW denied its members the right to vote for candidates of their choice without fear of penalty or reprisal, denied certain members the right to vote and used union funds, the union's official publication and other union offices to promote the candidacies of incumbent officers.

Trbovich seeks to intervene to bring two additional allegations into the court hearing, that the union maintained "bogus" local unions composed entirely or primarily of retired members and that Boyle influenced the election by declaring an increase in the monthly pension paid to retired bituminous coal miners in the midst of the election campaign.

Friends of Jim Loding, chief clerk at the Borough Police Station, may be interested to know that Jim is in the Millard Fillmore Hospital in Buffalo. Cards and letters should be addressed to Room 167.

Corry city police early Sunday cited Michael D. Kuzma, 21, of RD 1, Columbus for speeding. Information on the charge was filed with District Justice Porter Auer.

A slight error is noted in the accident account which appeared Tuesday in the Warren Times-Mirror and Observer involving a car operated by Charles E. Stroud, 23, of Steelton, Pa. Monday morning on Route 948, three miles south of Sheffield. The second vehicle was parked when sideswiped and not driven by William George Verbosky, 21, of RD 1, Pittsfield, as previously stated. Total damage was listed at $1,700.

The latest voter registrations show the traditional Democrat margin in Warren Borough's fourth ward has moved to the Republican side of the ledger. There are now 277 GOP registrations as compared to 232 Demos. Registrations as of May 18 of this year, before the primary election were 75 Democrats and 215 Republicans.

Mexico Seeks Exemption From Import Tax

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico appears to be opening a quiet campaign for special exemption from the 10 per cent surtax President Nixon imposed on imports.

The Mexicans apparently hope to enlist the aid of Canada to get special status to the two nations which border the United States.

State Department officials report no plans to give any nation an exemption. But Mexican sources say behind-the-scenes maneuvering has convinced them there is a good chance of success when the smoke clears from Phase 2 of Nixon's economic plan.

An exemption for Mexico would be of major political advantage to President Luis Echeverria. He is under criticism from businessmen and industrialists for what they feel is a leftward drift in his 11-month-old government. By winning an exemption Echeverria could stimulate his country's lagging economy and ease the business-industry complaints.

About 70 per cent of this country's exports go to the United States. The U.S. Embassy calculates one-fourth are directly affected by the surtax. The Mexicans say $500 million worth of trade is affected, with Mexico losing perhaps $80 million a year.

Mexican officials generally support Nixon's other moves to improve the U.S. economy because the two economies are closely linked. But they contend Mexico should get some sort of special treatment because it has supported the dollar.

Agnew Honors Greek Ancestors

GARGALIANOI, Greece (AP) — Kinfolk all, the Agnews and the Anagnostopoulos embraced Tuesday in a sentimental homecoming.

It was an affair of family, village and state, spilling thousands of Greeks through the narrow streets of Spiro T. Agnew's ancestral home.

The emotion of the vice president's visit to the place where his father was born was evident in his face as he stood in a sand-floored soccer stadium and spoke of his Greek heritage.

It could be read as he placed a wreath draped in American flags at a family grave site, and as he visited the Anagnostopoulos family home, a narrow two-story building of white stucco.

Near the arched doorway he dedicated a plaque "at my great grandfather's home in commemoration of my origins here and in honor of the Greek inheritance in which so many other Americans proudly share."

It was a day of flag waving, folk dancing in the village square, and a luncheon of roast veal and fruits in honor of the vice president.

Along with the sentiment, there was evidence of the political aspects of Agnew's visit to Greece. Premier George Papadopoulos flew with him by Air Force jet and helicopter to the village overlooking the Ionian Sea.

An Agnew aide who was present during the vice president's talks with Papadopoulos in Athens said no commitments on U.S. military aid to Greece were reached there.

The aide said the discussions did not cover such specific items but were a general discussion of the need for a strong alliance in the North Atlantic's Treaty Organization.

The population of Gargalianoi is listed at 7,000 but many times that number flooded the stadium, streets, balconies and squares of the town.

Agnew shook hands, smiled and waved. He speaks no Greek, but the sentiment was clear in any language.

It was perhaps most evident as Agnew spoke of his late father, born in Gargalianoi as Theofrastes Spyros Anagnostopoulos. He anglicized his name after emigrating to the United States, 69 years ago. He died in 1963.

Agnew was accompanied by his wife, two daughters and a cousin, Olga Agnew from Townson, Md.

Papadopoulos and two deputy premiers were with the Agnews as they toured the village.

Agnew went to an orphanage, which once was a convent founded by his great-aunt. He met with two recipients of scholarships set up by him and Greek-American donors.

He left in Gargalianoi a gift to the village, a silver flowered vase. He turned a symbolic spade of earth to plant a tree "as a living and fruitful symbol of the warm and enduring bonds between the Greek and American nations."

GETTING READY FOR WINTER

A highway meeting will be held at the PennDOT office at Starbrick at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. All personnel and truckers will receive a general briefing and a dry run staged later to acquaint workers to routes, road conditions, headwall markers, areas of freezing conditions and low dipping roadbeds. In anticipation of winter, snow fencing has been started in areas such as Spring Creek, Scandia, Russell, Akeley, Sugar Grove, Lander and other sections. In operation this year, the county will have 26 trucks, six large graders and three small graders. For snow fencing, 4,100 posts will be placed and 41 miles of fencing erected. Pictured with the equipment Tuesday were, left to right, George R. Scanlon, Earl Capron, county superintendent; Robert Offutt from the district office; Arnold Haight, Leon Lauffenberger and Ed Eppinger. (Photo by Mansfield).

WARREN, PA., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1971

Non-Resident College Students May Soon Seek Resident Rates

HARRISBURG (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee predicts out-of-state college students, now considered Pennsylvania voting residents, will soon be clamoring for resident tuition rates at state supported schools. "This will cost the Commonwealth $10,637,672 next year," Sen. Benjamin R. Donolow, D-Philadelphia, said Tuesday, attacking last month's opinion by the attorney general to allow college students to vote on campus.

"The right to vote is the highest privilege of citizenship," Donolow said. "So how can lesser privileges be denied?" Peter Brown, deputy attorney general who worked on the opinion, commented later that tuition residency requirements would not be a problem. Schools owned or financially related to the state offer lower fees to residents of Pennsylvania. "That opinion only dealt with student residence for voting purposes and did not deal with tuition remission," Brown said.

He added that residency can be established for a number of specific purposes including welfare, automobile registration and inheritance tax. Donolow, who is an attorney, said he didn't think out-of-state students would have any trouble winning a legal battle to get the lower tuition rates. He said there are 11,132 non-resident students in the state-owned and state-related colleges. Their tuition has been from $898 to $1,020 higher than residents.

"Unless there is further clarification of the opinion, it will have a tremendous impact on next year's budget," the senator said. Brown said he was uncertain if a further opinion would be needed. If it is, he added, the new ruling would probably be based on the principle that parents of resident students contribute through taxes to the subsidies given to the schools.

On a related topic, Donolow released at a news conference his recommendations for state aid to medical schools. These appropriations for the current year were held up when the rest of the state budget was adopted in August.

Donolow's recommendations total $21.8 million. That's $1.5 million less than the amount proposed by the House. He said the revisions are based on actual enrollment figures instead of the estimates used by the House.

There are 4,046 students studying for medical degrees in Pennsylvania, he added. This doesn't include those in graduate medicine programs. Here are Donolow's recommendations for the medical schools: Jefferson, $3.5 million; Hahnemann, $2 million; Women's, $1.1 million; Penn., $2.6 million; Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, $295 million; Temple, $4.6 million; Pitt, $3.4 million, and Penn State, $1.8 million.

The last three institutions, state-related schools, would get $7,465 for each medical student while the other, private colleges would get $4,400 per student.

Community College Subsidy Hiked To $1200

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House passed 179-7 and sent the Senate Tuesday a bill to increase the state's subsidy to community colleges from $1,000 to $1,200 a student.

The hike is designed to make the state's payment equal to one-third of a college's operating costs. Because of increased expenses at the schools, the state payment no longer totals one-third.

For the summer term, state reimbursements would be increased from $500 to $600 a student.

All administrative personnel in the schools would become eligible for either the public school employees' retirement system, the state employees' retirement plan or an independent system.

The bill also allows the state to defer one-half the cost of leased or rented capital equipment and furniture used for instructional administrative purposes.

The House also passed, 167-20, a bill to increase grants made by the Commonwealth to county health boards. The grants would go from 75 cents to $1.50 for each person served.

The goal is to further local community interest in creating county and regional health offices, sponsors said. County health offices deal with problems on a community basis, and thus can be more effective in many areas than a statewide program, they said.

Free Service Clinic Set For Thursday

A free service clinic (open house) in the Service Shop at Bob Duell Pontiac-Cadillac, Inc., 1511 Pennsylvania ave. east, is scheduled for today (Wednesday) from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and Thursday, 8 a.m. until 9 p.m.

In use will be the famous Sun Electronic Equipment to assure quick service, positive results and customer satisfaction. Representatives from Pontiac Motor Division and Cadillac Motor Car Division will be in attendance both days.

The testing equipment determines exhaust emission levels, a verification of engine performance through Infra-Red gas analysis, which quickly measure carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbon emissions of engine idle and normal operating revolutions, and a pollution control valve testing system.

The actual cleanup of pollutants is accomplished by each motorist taking prompt action as advised. Northwestern Pennsylvania Tuberculosis and Health Society personnel from Erie and Warren will also be in attendance.

Appointments are desired but not necessary.

PSBA Head Attacks Tenure Of Teachers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fred M. Heddinger, executive director of the Pennsylvania School Boards Association, said Tuesday teacher tenure in Pennsylvania should be eliminated because under state law it is virtually impossible to dismiss poor teachers.

Both students and good teachers are paying a high price for this, Heddinger said in remarks prepared for a news conference.

He also called for repeal of the recently enacted aid plan to nonpublic schools and prohibition against school employees serving on school boards.

The association has been urging aid to nonpublic schools through "shared-time" programs rather than direct financial aid. "It was no surprise that repeal of the recently enacted voucher plan would be called for," Heddinger said. "Under the new law, private schools could receive more state aid than some public schools."

He noted that civil service and municipal employees may not serve on municipal bodies, adding: "With school employees now given the opportunity for collective bargaining, such arrangements were beginning to be used where school employees in one district can influence their own benefits through the contracts they arrange or approve in districts where they serve on the school board."

New Outlook Proposed For Criminal Sentences

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Delegates to a conference of the Governor's Justice Commission said Tuesday decisions on criminal sentences should be aimed at protecting society, rather than gaining revenge against the criminal.

"Too many people still accept the premise that a person goes to prison to be punished," delegates to the commission's state-wide regional planning conference said.

The main thrust of the justice commission, the conferees said, should be on developing programs that provide alternatives

Shapp Promises All-Out, Humane Crime Control

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Governor Shapp, praising Pennsylvania's justice department as a symbol of integrity, Tuesday pledged an all-out, but humane, effort to control crime.

Speaking before the Governor's Justice Commission, Shapp said the Bureau of Corrections is adopting a reform program with a concept new to most people: "They are treating inmates like human beings."

"Prison mail is no longer censored; there is more group therapy for prisoners, and prison staff training has been concentrated," Shapp said.

The governor said the state has launched an all-out war on organized crime, initiated better police training, and worked towards improving social environments.

"The fight," he said, will be tempered with compassion in the handling of human beings, which, in turn, helps us to better control crime.

Election Day Liquor Sales In New Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — A bill to permit the sale of alcoholic beverages in taverns and restaurants on election day was submitted to the Senate Tuesday.

"I think it is time that we recognize that prohibiting the sale of beer and liquor on election day is outmoded and even discriminatory," said Sen. Thomas P. McCreesh, D-Philadelphia, the chief sponsor. "It is a practice which grew its roots more than 200 years ago when taverns often were the most convenient locations to conduct elections and served as polling places."

The states of Wisconsin and Wyoming have no liquor prohibition on election day, McCreesh added.

to correctional institutions.

The purpose of corrections, they said, should be protection of society. "This will be achieved through programs for living in the world of men. It will not be done by pursuing a philosophy of revenge."

To this end, delegates proposed that probation and other alternatives to prison be utilized to the fullest "to avoid further contamination of offenders by getting deeper into the system."

Calling for support of programs to reduce the size of the state's correctional institutions, conference delegates also recommended relocation of the facilities to move offenders closer to their homes.

Institution staff members, the conferees said, should be

Industrial Development Bill Passes

HARRISBURG (AP) — A bill to expand industrial development in Pennsylvania passed the House 160-32 Tuesday and went to the Senate.

The measure would expand coverage of the state's industrial development law to include projects related to tourism and recreation, such as ski complexes and summer resorts.

It also would expand coverage to commercial manufacturing concerns.

The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority could, under the bill, grant loans up to 55 per cent of a project cost for pollution control research. The current limit is 45 per cent.

Public utilities, railroad companies and mining companies would become eligible for pollution research loans.

Another provision would permit local development authorities to enter into agreements for construction and furnishing of commercial and office buildings, and buildings for service industries. This would enable developers to go into a project at three points under the going rate of interest on loans.

Damage Totals $800

CORRY — Property damage totaled $800 in a two-vehicle accident which occurred Sunday on Route 6 in Warren County near Deed Man rd.

State police said a car operated by Johann Fugmann of Erie was traveling west on Route 6 and swerved to avoid a collision with a vehicle driven by Marguerite McCumber of RD 1, Pittsfield.

Police said Fugmann's car hit the other in the left rear.

Cop Killed, Another Hurt By Three Men In Car

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — A local policeman was killed and another wounded seriously Tuesday by rifle fire from a passing auto on the main street of this central Pennsylvania community, police said.

State police said a massive hunt had been mounted for three men in a late model, brown sedan. The car last was seen speeding toward Interstate 80, troopers said.

The shooting occurred on Allegheny Street downtown shortly after 5 p.m., police said. The officers apparently were on foot, they added.

The dead officer was identified by police as Ronald Seymour.

The wounded officer, identified as Clarence Seward, was in "very serious condition" at Centre Community Hospital, police said.

Peter Wiebowski, employed at a local drug store, said the shooting occurred along a sidewalk adjacent to the Mid-State Bank and Trust Co.

"I heard about five or six shots and I didn't know what was going on," he said. "I thought it was firecrackers or something."

"Then I went outside and saw the policeman lying there and the car speeding around the corner."

Bellefonte, a town of 8,000 is about 10 miles north of State College, site of Pennsylvania State University.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I took your advice and it stank. For years I have been bothered with a pesty neighbor who used to come over in the morning and follow me around from room to room—gossiping and interfering with my housework. Then I read in your column about another woman who had the same problem. You told her to keep her door locked and not answer the bell. It sounded like a sensible approach so I tried it last Monday.

Do you know what my neighbor did? She broke open my basement window with a hammer and a crowbar and came upstairs. I was shocked when I saw her. Her first words were, "Thank God you're all right." I thought something terrible had happened to you when you didn't answer the bell.

So, you see, when a person has neighbors like mine she is defenseless. Any more suggestions? — Sitting Duck

DEAR DUCKY: Yes. Tell your neighbor you appreciate her concern but when you don't answer the bell it means one of two things: (1) You are not at home or (2) you are at home and too busy for company—so will she please not take it upon herself to break and enter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a high schooler (a non-smoker, by the way) who did not agree with your advice against setting up smoking rooms in high schools for kids who smoke. There's another side to the story which you obviously don't know.

The break between classes is about four minutes. A person barely has time to use the bathroom. The student who needs the bathroom can't get in because all the stalls are filled with kids who are grabbing a cigarette. Another problem is that the kids who smoke have wrecked our school bathrooms. There are cigarette burns on the toilet seats, the floors, the walls, on the towel racks, and once someone accidentally set fire to the place.

I envy the students whose school has a smoking room. It's better not only for the smokers, but for the non-smokers, too. I know you will print this letter because you are fair about presenting both sides. — Burned In Schenectady

DEAR BURNED: Your letter does indeed, present some valid arguments in favor of smoking rooms in high schools. I have received several other thoughtful rebuttals — an especially good one from Arthur N. Pierce, Superintendent of Schools, Hanover, New Hampshire. However, I am still against the idea.

Cigarette smoking has been proved unquestionably harmful to health. Facilities for smokers, in my opinion, condone and encourage smoking. As an alternative, I suggest monitors in the bathrooms at class-break time, with penalties for those who break the rules. The notion that you have to permit students to smoke is nonsense. Nicotine addicts can work on their lung cancers before 9 a.m. and after 3 p.m.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married nine years. When we were going together he used to tell a few lies but since we've been married he's been a lot better at that sort of thing.

Last week he called me "Rose" in his sleep. I thought I was imagining things because it was sort of a mumble. Last night I heard him plain as day. "Move over, Rose," he said. This morning I asked what it was all about. He said Rose is the nickname of a fellow he works with — Rosenheim is his real name. I have heard him talk about this guy before. Should I phone up the personnel director? Would it get back to him if I did? Please advise. — No Rose

DEAR NO: Don't start poking around your husband's place of employment. Trust him. If he's playing around you'll smell something sooner or later and it won't be a rose.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with — but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze And You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Couple At St. Joseph's Church October 9

Carole Anne Gagliardi became the bride of Frank Eugene Chiaravallotti in a double ring ceremony held October 9, 1971 in St. Joseph's Church, with Father Thomas McSweeney from Erie officiating.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Gagliardi, 116 Cayuga avenue, Warren. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Chiaravallotti, 824 W. Fifth ave., Warren.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was dressed in a white satepeau over taffeta gown. Baroque style Venice lace formed a molded empire bodice and the scalloped sabrina neckline. Lace on the long camelot sleeves formed the cuffs with the wedding points. A floor length A-line skirt was fashioned with softly gathered fullness.

The bride wore a Venice lace headband, centered with a bow, which held a chapel length mantilla of illusion encircled with matching scalloped Venice lace. She carried a bouquet of white fuji mums and pompons.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Marlene Brasington, was chosen as matron of honor. She wore a jakarta floor length A-line gown with a cumberbund of multi-colored floral embroidery. A matching band centered with a gold bow held the butterfly veil. She carried a round cascade bouquet of mums and pompons in yellows and gold, with gold velvet streamers.

Dressed in gowns styled the same as the matron of honor and in a willow green color, were the bridesmaids, Joanie Hogan, Bethesda, Maryland; and Mary Jane Poulson, Warren, friends of the bride.

The flower girl was Christina Zaffino, a niece of the bride, who was dressed in a gold jakarta floor length gown similar to the adult attendants. She carried a basket of gold and green mums, pompons, and daisies with gold velvet streamers.

The ringbearer was Christopher Zaffino, a nephew of the bride.

John Chiaravallotti served as best man for his brother, Joseph Chiaravallotti, also a brother of the bridegroom, and John

MRS. FRANK CHIARAVALLOTTI

Gagliardi, a brother of the bride, were ushers. All male attendants were dressed in brown Edwardian tuxedos with gold ruffled shirts.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gagliardi wore a moss green dress with black accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother chose a pink dress with black accessories and wore a corsage of pink and white roses.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the Youngsville Fire Hall, with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rickerson acting as master and mistress of ceremonies. Reception aides were Mrs. Debbie Clark, Mrs. Marcia Darr, and Mrs. Mary Zaffino.

The couple is now at home at 206½ Oneida ave.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Warren Area High School and is employed at New Process Company. The bridegroom is a 1966 graduate of Warren Area High School, served three years in the U.S. Army, and is employed at General Electric in Erie.

The bridal party was entertained at a rehearsal dinner given at Pace's Restaurant by the bridegroom's parents. Other pre-nuptial affairs were given by Marlene Brasington, Mary Chiaravallotti, Debbie Clark, Rose Gagliardi, Joanie Hogan, Mary Jane Poulson, and Mary Zaffino.

State Grange Plans Meet Oct. 25-28

Statewide activity of the Pennsylvania State Grange in rural areas for reawakened leadership and better living will highlight exhibits and reports at its 99th convention Oct. 25-28 at Somerset and provide a major basis for service in 1972, A. Wayne Readinger, master, said today.

Many grange programs aimed primarily at in-service training have filtered out to widened involvement and eventual community achievement, Readinger pointed out. He listed the Grange's leadership school which for the past several years has been conducted at Gettysburg College for some 500 grange officials; also district conferences, and a variety of contests. All of these, he said, have had a leavening influence for developing quickened interest in civic, social and citizenship responsibilities.

Long a tradition with the Grange, these programs will continue, the state master asserted, with any additions or changes that may be voted by the convention delegates.

Mainly, these concerns have reflected needs of farmers, especially for an articulate leadership, but in view of

Hint From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: We redecorated our kitchen from pink to yellow and were stuck with a turquoise-and-white highchair that really clashed with our orange accents.

So I painted the seat and back with the latex wall paint so it would match.

Besides having a color coordinated high chair, we have the added advantage of having it much easier to keep clean.

Also, the tape we used to repair a rip in the seat now stays on, because it has been painted over.

Donna Acquaviva

—Sister Clara Baudison, C.D.S. Parish Coordinator.

In Warren, guest lecturers are to be invited to participate in the lecture series. The first of the series will be "Challenge to Change" by Rev. John Kuzilla, and "Religious Education Change" by Sister Kathleen Hagan, C.D.S.

The course is to be structured as an informal lecture-discussion and the classes are to be held in the Lecture Hall at St. Pius X Center, 813 Pennsylvania ave., East. There is to be no charge for attendance and the speakers will be delighted to welcome all interested parties.

GRAND OPENING SPECIAL—NOW!

Good news for residents of this area is the opening by Gary and Jackie Wallin, of a Crossland Furniture Restoration Studio at 2025 Penn avenue East, Warren, Pa.

As a Grand Opening Special, Gary and Jackie will strip the Paint or varnish from one side chair (limit one per family) for just $3.00 between now and November 6th. This is a savings of $5.50 on a painted chair.

The Crossland Process is the most modern known for stripping paint and varnish from furniture. It is the only process approved by antique dealer associations, interior decorators and professional furniture refinishers, for it doesn't raise the grain, loosen glued joints or harm the patina.

Hurry! Take advantage of the Wallin's Grand Opening Special NOW! Learn why the Crossland Process is known as "The Furniture Restoration Service with the Finishing Touch." Learn how easy it is to refinish your own furniture and SAVE MANY DOLLARS. The Wallin's Crossland Furniture Restoration Studio is at 2025 Penn Avenue, East, Warren, Pa. Advertisement

When All Else Fails - Read The Instructions

NEW YORK (AP)—With the economy still in the grip of inflation, there's a way housewives can save money, says the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York — and that's by avoiding unnecessary service calls.

The Bureau issued this checklist for appliance owners to resort to before calling a repairman:

1. Check the cord. Simple as it may seem, an unplugged cord
2. Check the fuses.
3. Check to see that the controls are set properly. The dials should be turned in the proper direction.
4. Is the appliance clean? A clogged filter is frequently responsible for a malfunctioning air conditioner. Washers have lint screens that must be cleaned. Refrigerator and freezer coils should also be cleaned periodically.

5. If the appliance needs water, make sure the water is flowing into it. Check faucets and hoses.

6. Some appliances do not operate unless the doors and latches are securely shut. Check them.

The first thing a new appliance owner should do, the Bureau recommends, is to read the instructor's manual thoroughly. It may answer future questions and eliminate a visit from the repairman.

Young Mothers

Learn About Children's Art

Mrs. Rebecca Thomas discussed art work with children of all ages at the recent meeting of the Young Mothers Study Group, held at the home of the group's president, Sylvia Follett. Mrs. Thomas had group members do a first grade art lesson as a demonstration.

Several new members were welcomed into the group, including Mrs. Jane Karkosky, Mrs. Ann Bonavita, Mrs. Carole Blasco, Mrs. Jan Walentyn, and Mrs. Marti Nicotera.

Halloween candy was given to the members to sell as a club money making project.

Mrs. Janet Hampson and Mrs. Ginny Watt served refreshments following the program.

The next meeting is to be held Nov. 8, with Dr. Roger Mesmer speaking on "Our fantasies about our children and how they help shape our child."

Forest County

Hymn Sing Scheduled

Several special numbers are to feature the Hymn Sing for Forest County area people to be held Sunday, Oct. 24, at 2 p.m. in the Marienville Presbyterian Church, according to Russell Motter, chairman of the event.

Five "specials" have already been registered and others may enter by notifying Russell Motter, Clarion, or David Manross, R. D. 2, Tidioute, president of Forest County Sunday School Association, sponsor of the Hymn Sing. Entries of individuals or groups also may be volunteered during the event on Sunday afternoon.

Forest County 4-H clubs through their leaders and teen leaders have received a special invitation to participate by singing or by attendance. Sam Wagner, Forest County 4-H Teen Leader President, won first place in the regional teen talent sacred music contest held recently in Clarion. This contest was sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Sunday School Association.

Sam will be singing "Prayer Is the Key to Heaven, but Faith Unlocks the Door" in the State Contest Saturday, Oct. 23, at the 109th Pennsylvania Sunday School Convention in Allentown. His sister Janis is to accompany him at the piano.

Hints From

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is another tasty idea for bologna.

If you have a toaster-broiler with the slide-in tray, place slices of bologna directly on the tray with a chunk of cheese in the middle.

The bologna puffs up into cups and the cheese melts and makes a very delicious snack. Carole

DEAR HELOISE:

Do you know how to remove a marble from a bowling ball? My little brother pushed it into a finger hole and no matter what we do, it won't come out.

John Sullivan

Nobody ever knows when they are going to lose their marbles! (Hee Hee)

I'm sorry, but I can't help you on this one, but if anyone does find a way to get it out, let us know. You can never tell, it just might happen to someone else someday. Heloise

Sugar Grove Area News

By MARTHA WARNER
Reading Club Meets
The Sugar Grove Reading Club opened its 1971-72 season with a bridal fashion show held the evening of Oct. 7, at Sugar Grove Presbyterian Church. The fashions shown were provided by Edie Worch's Bridal House, Jamestown, N. Y.

Mrs. Harold Landin, president, welcomed the 64 members and guests present and expressed appreciation for the work of the committees. Mrs. Robert Carlson, Mrs. Victor Spattifor and Mrs. Worch co-ordinated the program.

Mrs. Darwin Curtis created appropriate background music at the organ. Mrs. Robert Carlson introduced the models and gave commentary on the apparel, which included bridal gowns, bridesmaids' gowns, gowns for the mother-of-the-bride, and honeymoon clothing.

Mrs. Victor Spattifor created a variety of floral accessories to coordinate with the gowns. She also arranged the centerpiece which complimented the tea table.

The home-town talent turned models for the evening were Miss Caroline Cariberg, Miss Mary Cariberg, Mrs. Russell Forsgren, Mrs. John Hagberg, Mrs. Jack Jordan, Mrs. Donald Sherrard, Miss Gayle Shepherd and Mrs. Guy Josef Summerson. Miss Lisa Worch of Jamestown also enjoyed showing the lovely gowns from her mother's shop.

The reception-type refreshments were served attractively. Mrs. John Lassinger, Mrs. Howard Curtis, Mrs. Ellsworth Hawley, Mrs. Gerald Miller, Mrs. John Olds, and Mrs. Conrad Youngberg were the hostess committee. The November 4th meeting will be held at the Educational Building of the United Methodist Church. Mrs. Sally Chall will present a program featuring holiday decorations.

Borough Council
The Sugar Grove Borough Council passed a resolution designating the Sugar Grove Free Public Library as the Municipal Agency for Library service for the Sugar Grove Borough.

Guests at the council meeting were Miss Caribelle Swanson and Mrs. Michael Schultz representing the Library board in connection with their position in the proposed new Borough Building & Fire Hall.

The Warren County Water and Sewer Plan which was presented before council for its consideration and adoption was tabled to a further time. Plans were made for the presentation of the 1972 Budget to be presented at the next meeting. A discussion took place pertaining to the preparing of the storm sewers and the streets before winter.

Circle Meets
Mrs. Russell Forsgren was hostess to the Evening Circle of the Presbyterian Church with ten women present. Mrs. Victor Spattifor, Circle leader, presided.

Mrs. Allan Concoy conducted devotions reviewing an article on UNICEF. Members discussed the gift of sweaters to Missions in Clay Pond, Tenn., and also the Bazaar to be held on Nov. 18 and 19. Members worked on articles for the Bazaar during the evening.

The November meeting will be held at the church with Mrs. John Stuart. The hostess served refreshments.

Baptismal Service
The Rev. Dan Bower, pastor of First United Presbyterian Church baptized three infants at the worship service on Sunday morning. They were Christine Leigh, daughter of Leslie and Sandra Skinner Devereaux; James Emmet, son of Ronald and Judy Lang Gruber; and Richard Stephen, son of Hubert and Judy Trumbull Trask.

Personals
Mrs. Janet Sweeney entertained the Bridge Club at the home of Mrs. Conrad Youngberg. Honors went to Mrs. Charles White.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan spent the weekend with their daughter, Debbie, who is a senior at Adrian College in Adrian, Michigan.

Laurence Abbott is a patient at Jamestown General Hospital, and Mrs. Mildred Power is a surgical patient at the W.C.A. Hospital in Jamestown, N. Y.

Mrs. F. O. Eakin, Mrs. John Firth and Mrs. Lloyd Williams spent Tuesday in Franklin, Pa. attending the meeting of Lake Erie Presbyterial.

Recent guests of Miss Flossie Broughton have been Sidney Broughton and family of Brecksville, Ohio and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Woodard and children Eddie, Janet, Mike and Doris, and three friends were recent dinner guests.

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♥ Dble. Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠
Refusal by West to make the indicated lead led to a substantial swing when today's hand was dealt in a recent team-of-four contest.

The bidding was the same at both tables. South opened in second position with one heart and West made a take-out double. North passed and so did East. He had the required four defensive tricks including three in the trump suit.

The customary procedure when partner passes the double of an opening bid at the one level is to lead a trump so that he can draw declarer's holding in the suit. Leading side suits usually permits the opponent to single in little trumps that cannot otherwise be scored. Failure by one defender to heed this principle proved very costly to his team.

At one table West opened the king of spades, giving declarer a slight opening, on which he was quick to capitalize. West was allowed to hold the trick and, seeing the potential ruffing value in dummy, he belatedly shifted to a trump. East played the nine of hearts to dislodge declarer's queen.

South crossed over to the ace of diamonds and continued with a small diamond which he ruffed with the deuce of hearts. Next came the ace of spades and a spade ruff in dummy. Another diamond was trumped with the five of hearts for declarer's sixth trick and he subsequently scored the ace of hearts to fulfill the contract. The trick score was 160 points.

At the other table, West opened his singleton eight of hearts which East overtook with the nine to assure South's playing the queen. The ace of spades was cashed, on which West alertly dropped the jack. This enabled him to follow suit with the nine on the next round. East overtook with the ten of spades and returned the king of hearts.

Declarer played the ace, however he could reach the dummy only once—with the ace of diamonds—and accordingly obtained only one diamond ruff in his hand. Since he was also deprived of the spade ruff in dummy, the net result was a two trick difference on the deal because of the original trump lead.

South took, in all, three hearts, one spade and one diamond and suffered a 500 point deficit.

Marconi Bridge

Eight tables of the Mitchell Game were played last night at the Marconi Bridge Club. The average north and south was 84; east and west, 72.

North and south, first. Mr. and Mrs. John Fanaritis, 97; second, Hal Conarro and Nick Tomassoni, 92½; third, Mr. and Mrs. James Potter, 91½.

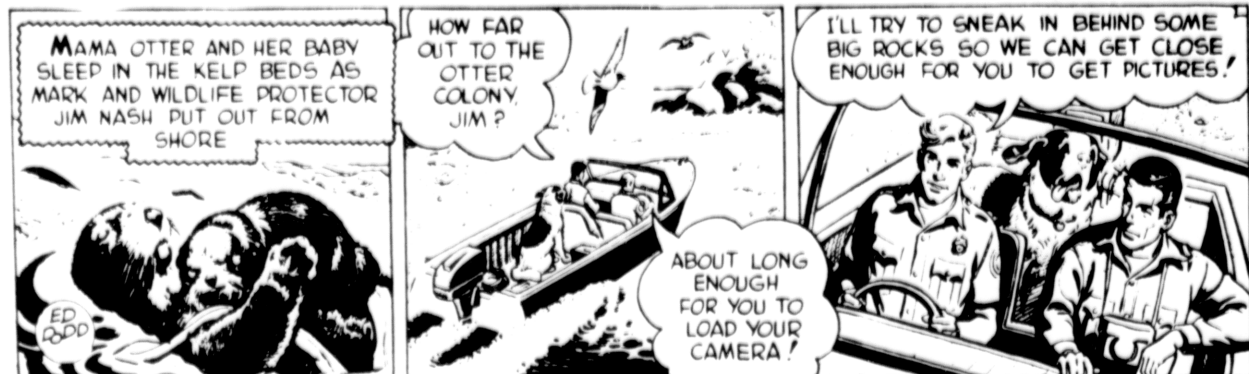

East and west, first, Dr. R. H. Israel and Robert Sokolski, 84½; second, Dr. and Mrs. L.J. Berger, 81; third, Mrs. J.A. Bevevino and Harry Kopf, 80½.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.
FOR WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1971

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Some persons may be under tension now. Don't be disturbed if you happen to be the victim of their caustic remarks or curt answers. Go about your own affairs cheerfully.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — You may not accomplish all that you wish, but keep doing your best and stick with "musts" to be finished. Don't leave them for others to complete.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Fine influences! Aim for early attainment, planned in your usual orderly fashion, but do not reject the novel or unfamiliar if it seems to have merit.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — A day in which routine may seem so boring that you will find your mind taking off on flights of fancy. Pull yourself together. Don't neglect obligations and do avoid extremes.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Hold the line against needless hustle and bustle, scattering energies. You can accomplish a great deal if you concentrate on reasonable goals and maintain an even pace.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Read Leo. Your outlook similar. If pressed for time, you may overlook vitally necessary details. Be alert to this, since carelessness could cause needless errors.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Having the right answers at the right time will count heavily now. But scotch any tendency to "talk out of turn" or otherwise antagonize associates.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Not much planetary help here. What you make of the day will be largely up to yourself. Just remember that, regardless of immediate returns, no good endeavor will be wasted.

By Frances Drake

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Avoid a tendency to slow up in some areas, quicken your pace unwarrantedly in others. Aim for steadiness. Keep facts separated from fancy; be exacting about details.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — You can make new and important strides during this period, but good timing will be essential. Where you can, give a boost to another.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Many matters may seem to need attention now. Take sufficient time, do NOT become flustered and DO know exactly what you are about. Cooperation with associates will help.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Don't waste time with ineffectual motion. You may not have the cooperation or help you hoped for, but this happens sometimes, and you can, MUST deal with it.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually versatile and, like the Gemini, could scatter energies but, because you tend to be thorough (even too meticulous about details), you seldom drop a project before it shows reward. You have an impressionable mind—a good asset if carefully controlled. Art, music and the theater relax you, and you could even earn a living in any one of these fields. Birthdate of: Sir Christopher Wren, English architect; John Dewey, philosopher; Mickey Mantle, baseball outfielder.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS
Most people get more sleep than they realize. Insomnia exists when the individual lies awake for hours and feels irritable and tired the next day. After several nights of this, the victim may resort to a sleeping pill or alcohol. Drug dependence is likely to develop unless the cause of sleeplessness is corrected.

Insomnia, the most common sleep disorder, is unusual in children. Before the age of 50, many people have trouble getting to sleep. After 50, remaining asleep is a problem.

Psychological causes of insomnia are far more prevalent than are the physical. These are easy to come by considering the constant barrage of bad news we hear over the various communications media. Every day there are crises, including rumors of war, overpopulation, pollution, poverty, racial unrest, violence, crime and nuclear annihilation.

Those with "thin hides" may have other problems of a personal nature or are suffering from serious psychiatric disturbances. Still others are plagued with obsessive thoughts that run full circle and never seem to let up.

Depression from despair, sadness, loneliness, rejection or loss of a loved one are common causes of insomnia. Depressed people are fatigued when they go to bed and tired when they get up. They sleep soundly for three to five hours and then are wide awake for the remainder of the night. Neurotics may also complain of insomnia but neglect to mention that they nap during the day.

Sedatives are among the best sellers in the drug industry. However, research has demonstrated that the barbiturates and certain tranquilizers interfere with REM sleep—the period when dreaming occurs. (Dreams seem to enhance the quality of sleep.) We now know which sedatives do not do this. The best include chloral hydrate, Dalmane, methaqualone, diazepam and Librium. A research product, L-tryptophan also has this quality.

Much has been written on electro-sleep but to date, the results are inconclusive.

BUYING A GOAT

H. P. writes: My children are rundown and I was thinking about buying a goat. But friends tell me goat's milk is no better than cow's. What is your opinion?

REPLY

I agree but it may take more than milk to build up your youngsters. See that they eat a balanced diet because milk per se is not high in calories. In addition, they may need vitamin-mineral capsules. Insist upon ample sleep, outdoor exercise and cleanliness. Avoid people with colds. Have the children examined to determine whether they harbor infections.

GLANDS AND TOOTH ERUPTION

S. L. writes: Could swelling of the glands below the ears be due to eruption of the second teeth?

REPLY

Yes, provided the gums are irritated by the erupting teeth. Since there are other causes of enlargement of these glands, you ought to ask your family physician to examine this child's neck.

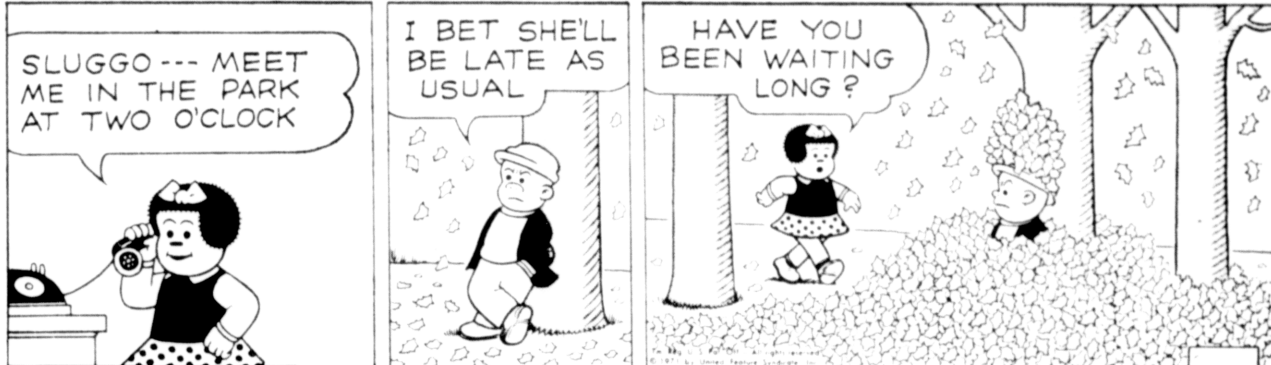

ANGINA AND MARRIAGE

M. J. M. R. A. writes: Would it be safe for a widow of 54 who has angina pectoris to marry?

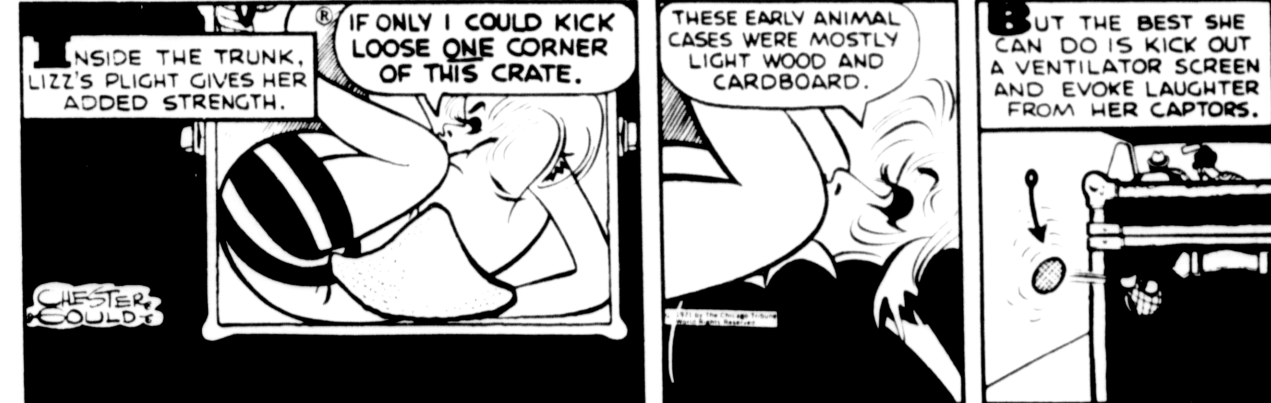

REPLY

Yes, provided she is willing to forgo those physical and emotional factors that are known to bring on chest pain.

TRANTER

DE FREES

The plot is an old one. It is the same plot that has saved the worthwhile things of all past civilizations. "The Presentation of a Countries Art Forms to Its Peoples." It would seem that this would be the easiest thing in the world to do. Provide areas for artists to display their wares and the opportunity for the people to view the artists reactions to their way of life and "Voila" we have the ideal way for man to intellectually keep in contact with his own progress. To view the works of twentieth century painters from all over the world means that we can understand life in other countries as well as our own. To listen to music composed by men and women of other countries is to feel the life spirit and to compare it with your own. To realize you are different and alike unto all men.

Art galleries have become places to be seen in and to meet people who are considered "with it." Not to experience an alliance with the times past or present. Concert halls are now a place to be seen and not to listen.

In the nineteen twenties, here in Warren Mrs. William Ethelston and her daughter Jean along with Miss Ethel McCray were among the first to realize that this area rated an artistic contact with the outer world other than the phonograph record and the radio. The most outstanding artists to be presented at that time were Jose F. and Rosa Levine who were later to become the most influential individuals involved in the piano curriculum at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

Your leading lady, Mrs. DeFrees can remember her music teacher Miss Anna K. Knowlton taking her to the Woman's Club Auditorium to hear the great Australian pianist, Percy Grainger. What an accomplishment for a town the size of what Warren must have been then. One of the world's greatest pianist-composers here for all to listen to.

Wars do strange things to people, like kill them and their ambitions; allow them to think only of meager survival and such. So was the effect of World War II on the Warren concert series.

In 1948 the Jaycees revived the concert series with the presentation of the Vienna Choir Boys. To my way of thinking an excellent choice and the membership soared beyond all expectations. So much that they had to engage the Library Theatre that year to accommodate the appreciative audiences. That was the year Patrice Munsell; Robert Merrill and the Pittsburgh Symphony were also presented. It is also very strange the way the few think about the many and the multitude hardly stop to realize to whom their enjoyment is responsible and again the enthusiasm waned. In 1961 the series was about to discontinue when a group of independent citizens, headed by Mrs. Francis Ericson and Mrs. John Wendell sponsored the drive. Again their choice was top draw: Rise Stevens and Leonard Rose. They even brought in outside promoters to assist them in their selection of programs and wound up doing all the work themselves anyway. Surveys were made of the audiences as to their preferences. The result was orchestras, choral groups and other largely personellated attractions. These cost money. There must be almost a unanimous decision in a community this size to bring a full symphony orchestra or a full chorus here. Because of the lack of radio exposure to the smaller artistically musical groups such as strong quartets, brass ensembles, saxophone quartets, madrigal singers, violin, piano, cello trios and the like, the request for such groups was at a bare minimum.

When the record industry wanted to sell their latest "Rock and Roll," "Folk Rock"; etc. they used the medium of radio to do it. We are a community with a radio station and a community that professes to want the finer things in life for our families. (This also includes our children.) Yet we have only one program that exposes our children as well as our adult population to the word old art of "series composition." I feel all composition is serious, but how can any one fully appreciate the new if he has no concept of the past. The result I have seen many times. He (the composer) thinks he is doing something that has never been done before and what is worse the public joins him in his opinion. This very obviously causes the neglect of history and what would we be without history. Change any second of it. Take out any second of it and we would be entirely different people because all is valid and should be understood. The pity of it all is that we are a small community with the spirit to harbor the concept of a concert series. Every child I come in contact with is scraping, blowing into, pounding on or in some manner trying to get music out of some kind of instrument and I think it is appropriate that they should be exposed with equal representation to all kinds of music. There is a marvelous family spirit here in Warren and we should fully become involved. The Warren concert series is to be admired and most of all supported to the best of our abilities. It is sad to say this is not always the case. For instance, out of several hundred college students on campus here there are less than twenty five tickets sold among them. I consulted my youth choirs as to how many were going to the concert tonight to hear the Bulgarian Childrens Chorus and I got no hands.

Charles Tranter handles the business for the organization and is in close contact with what is currently popular as well as what is available for The Warren Concert Associations budget.

Mr. Tranter came into the picture in 1948 when there had not been a current series for at most six years. The Jaycees had just organized and he was their first president. After the following waning years he was also among the revivers of the group in 1961 and has gone on to negotiate and advise the association as to what would be best in the selections of groups.

Barbara DeFrees a finished student of voice and piano also plays in the string section of the civic orchestra. As president of the Association has spirited them on to continue in the fine selection of artists to be presented here. Her contact with the performing field and as an interested participant in the musical art has given the quality necessary to preserve a high standard.

Tonight they present for you a most remarkable organization; The likes of which I would like to organize right here in Warren. The Bulgarian Childrens Chorus directed by Hristo Nedyalkov.
